Georgia's hard fought and somewhat bitter run-over campaign for the gubernatorial nomination came to a close Tuesday, with voters throughout the state reported eager to make their choice today between Richard B. Russell, Jr., and George H. Carswell.

Both men, seasoned campaigners and well schooled in Georgia's political lore, finished the final day with a speech. Mr. Russell talked in Atlanta, while Carswell spoke in Columbus. Both talks, however, were but afterthoughts of the many speeches, and statements made throughout the state in the past few weeks, speeches and statements which both felt presented the issues in clear-cut and definite manner.

The campaign, although conducted along much the same lines as was the first campaign, ending with the September 10 primary, carried its own drama. Russell, younger of the two and just completing his second term as speaker of the house of representatives, based his plea largely against factional politics, and what he termed the "present order." Carswell, secretary of state by appointment of Governor Hardman, contended the state's debt, and methods of meeting them, were the only issues at stake.

Tuesday, however, the issues were crowded to the background in favor of the machinery which will make the election possible. Headquarters of both men busy sending out last

Hawks Sets 254-Mile
Pace in 680-Mile Hop

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Frank Hawks, who holds the transcontinental air speed records in both directions, flew here from Detroit today in two hours and 41 minutes, which aviators here believed to be the fastest time ever made over such a distance.

Hawks estimated he flew 680 miles, giving him an average speed of 254.7 miles an hour. He said he had flown faster for a short distance but never as fast over such an extended course. He was flying the little scarlet monoplane in which he established the two cross-country records.

Three weeks ago he flew from here to Detroit in three hours and three minutes, beating the best previous time for that flight, which was made by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh. It was from Colonel Lindbergh that Hawks took the west-east transcontinental record.

Hawks flew at 10,000 feet today to get the benefit of tail winds.

Two Bishops Enter Race in Colorado

DENVER, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Bishop Frank Rice, of the Liberal church, advocate of repeal of the eighteenth amendment and legal sanctioning of birth control, has entered the Colorado senatorial campaign.

Secretary of State Charles W. Armstrong announced today Bishop Rice's petition for placing his name on the ballot had been accepted for filing, together with that of Bishop Walter Moore, also of the Liberal church, who is a candidate for governor.

Acceptance of the filings will put five tickets for governor and United States senator in the field as the socialists and communists also will contest for those offices with the major party candidates.

MOB TAKES NEGRO AT CARTERSVILLE

Trial Is Delayed, Clark
Falls to Mob.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Oct. 1.—Overpowering Sheriff George W. Gaddis and swarming into the Bartow county jail, a large mob early this morning removed John Will Clark, negro, confessed slayer of Joe Ben Jenkins, Cartersville police chief, whose trial, slated to start here today, was postponed.

No information as to the mob's movements after it left the jail with the negro had been received by Sheriff Gaddis several hours after he was forced to give up his prisoner.

Clark was brought here for trial at noon Tuesday, but no signs of violence were manifested during his transfer to and from the city jail to the courtroom.

A bill of exceptions to the overruling by Judge Pittman of a motion for a change of venue in the case of Clark was filed before him, Judge Pittman, late Tuesday afternoon. The judge announced that the trial of the negro would be postponed until the issue raised by the bill of exceptions could be passed upon by the higher courts of Georgia.

Clark was brought to Cartersville from Atlanta by Sheriff Gaddis, reaching here shortly after noon. The case was sounded promptly, and Har- old Sheats and Marion Williamson, of Atlanta, representing Clark, immediately filed a motion for a change of venue, alleging that their client could not obtain a fair trial in this county. Judge Pittman went into a hearing on this motion. The state placed upon the witness stand more than a dozen citizens of the county, and all of them declared it to be their opinion that Clark could receive a fair and impartial trial. This evidence being completed, Judge Pittman announced he would overrule the change of venue appeal.

Williamson and Sheats promptly presented to the court their bill of exceptions to the ruling, making a postponement of the case necessary until it can be passed upon by the higher court.

Judge Pittman said he would call a special session of Bartow superior court immediately after the higher court's decision is handed down, and he intimated this would be within two or three weeks.

In the meantime, it was announced by Judge Pittman that Clark would remain in the Bartow county jail here instead of being returned to the Fulton Tower, where he has been held for the past two weeks.

ROOSEVELT SAYS CAMPAIGN ISSUE IS NOT TAMMANY

Accepts Nomination of New York Democrats and Will Ignore New York City in Race.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Renominated unanimously for a second term by the New York state democratic convention today, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt in his speech to the delegates declared that the campaign must be fought out on state issues rather than on conditions in New York City.

The governor did not refer specifically to the Tammany Hall machine.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

United News Sports Editor.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 30.—(UN)—A good American league team can lick a good National league team, to paraphrase the old axiom of fist-cuffs, and such is the majority opinion on the eve of the 1936 world series.

The Philadelphia Athletics are favorites to retain the championship of the baseball world in the forthcoming series with the St. Louis Cardinals, but these peppy Red Birds from Missouri are expected to put up a better battle for the title than some of their immediate predecessors.

Thirty-three thousand fans will look on in Shibe park tomorrow, under presumably sunny skies, when the Mackmen and Cards take the field for the opening game. The starting pitchers will be "Lefty" Grove, for the American league champions, and the scrappy Cardinals, who came with a rush through September to snatch the pennant in a desperate finish in the senior circuit, are counting upon the momentum thus gained to carry them on to the first victory of the National league since 1926.

But the Red Birds are somewhat scrappy as well as scrappy, with Jimmy Wilson definitely unable to take his regular place behind the bat and Frankie Frisch on a bed of pain tonight with a severe attack of malingering. Frisch, kingpin of the Cardinals' first line of defense, probably will play despite his wounds. If he cannot do so, Sparky Adams, who is shifted to second and Andy High, the handy pinch-hitter who wrecked the Brooklyn club's hopes in the decisive series of the National league race will, pray, third. To add to "Sergeant" Gabby Street's worries, Ray Blades, utility outfielder, twisted an ankle in practice today.

Grove in Line.

There seems little doubt that Connie Mack will start his ace southpaw, "Lefty" Grove, against the Missourians. Grove himself told the writer he does not know whether he is to pitch tomorrow or not, but a clinch he will be in there.

Although they are 10 to 7 favorites, a well tried, well rested and smooth-working ball club, the Athletics need that opening game, which is always the crucial one of any world series. Talk of Ed Ruppel or Shores starting the series is discounted by the necessity of capturing the opener and taking some of the steam out of these chesty challengers from St. Louis.

There has been no change in Gabby Street's plans. It will be Grimes; Frisch, kingpin of the Cardinals, with Flint Rhem, whose "sidelining" provided a ludicrous high-light to the closing days of the National league pennant race, now all right, sobered up and ready for duty in the second game here.

The Athletics are going into the series with the same team that defeated the Chicago Cubs so decisively and spectacularly last year. They have escaped such injuries as have hampered their rivals, and their stars are well rested. If they do not win, they will have no excuse.

The Athletics are favored to win.

BRUENING OFFERS STRICT ECONOMY OR DICTATORSHIP

German Chancellor Calls for Showdown With Fascists; Salary Cuts and High Taxes.

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Firmly backed by President Von Hindenburg, Chancellor Bruening today confronted German parliamentarism with a choice of either saving its own life by speedy action in the hour of the country's dire need or committing suicide and being sent home indefinitely.

Decision of the government to come out boldly with its financial reform program and force a showdown was decided upon in the face of threats by Adolf Hitler, national socialist (fascist) leader, that any attempt by the president and chancellor to eliminate reichstag interference with their program might lead to President Von Hindenburg's indictment or to a fascist putsch.

Ever since September 13, when the election was held which placed 107 fascists in the new reichstag, the Bruening cabinet had been working on a program of essential reforms to put the reich's finances in order.

Final touches were put to this program late in the night. These consisted of slashing salary reductions, a bold halt to mounting taxes and a rigid economy in public administration.

No sooner had President Von Hindenburg returned today from a few days' outing at the presidential hunting lodge in Schorfheide than the chancellor laid the completed program before him. The chief executive not only approved the measure, but pledged himself to back his cabinet to the limit, emphasizing, however, that there must be no dilly-dallying.

It is up to the reichstag members, conservatives, liberals and radicals, business interests and farmers to take the Hindenburg-Bruening program or leave it. In other words the first in command and his financial aide are willing once more to follow the constitutional method of securing or attempting to secure the reichstag approval of the program, admittedly rigorous and drastic and demanding.

Not the least of the reforms falls directly upon the heads of administrators. The salaries of the 107 members of the reichstag will be cut by 20 per cent. He will also have to cut his own salaries by 10 per cent, as will the incomes of reichsbank and other state officials.

A saving of 1,000,000,000 marks under the 1930 budget is estimated. One of the drastic provisions made was to place a special law prohibiting for three years any increased salary for communal expenditures. With an eye to assisting in checking unemployment, the government proposes to build 215,000 houses and flats. This act will relieve a shortage of dwellings and provide jobs for the unemployed. It also provides for a 10 per cent decrease in government insurance. Federal payments to state treasuries will be cut sharply and poor relief limited.

AL CAPONE AIDE
ARRESTED BY U. S.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The federal government entered actively into the war on Chicago's public enemies today with motives of its own and nabbed Jack Guzik, business manager of the Capone Vice Corporation. The government wanted him for tax evasion.

Meanwhile, police rearrested the first public enemy caught in their net, Danny Stanton, on a warrant charging the murder of Jack Zuta, reputed brains of the Moran gang, at Delafield, Wis., last August 1.

Three other public enemies listed by the Chicago crime commission were having difficulties with the courts. Terry Druggan, sick abed at a hospital, had his lawyers before federal court to present certificates from physicians, showing he was suffering from bronchitis, prostatic, gastritis, duodenitis, cholecystitis, appendicitis and colitis. These "sick" certificates, it was argued, prevented him from appearing on tax evasion charges. A government-selected physician will be sent to verify the certificates.

George "Red" Barker and William "Three-Fingered" White, represented by Clarence Darrow, appeared before Judge John H. Lyle, who issued the original public enemy warrants, to ask change of venue. The judge continued the hearing.

Stanton was rearrested just after he appeared on a vagrancy charge demanding jury trial, which was set for October 16. Detectives acted on a warrant that a murder warrant was sent from Waukegan, Wis., bullets fired from a gun which was taken from Stanton when he was arrested two weeks ago matched some of those taken from the body of Zuta.

Court Demands
Whitehead Name
7 'Initial' Men

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Joseph B. Whitehead, Coca-Cola millionaire, today was ordered to disclose the full names of seven prominent men with whom he says Annette S. Bracy, a young widow, was friendly.

The order, coming from Supreme Court Justice Hamner, won for Mrs. Bracy the first skirmish in her $500,000 breach of promise suit against Whitehead.

In his answer to the suit Whitehead has declared he broke with Mrs. Bracy because he learned of her friendship with other men, whom he identified only partially. Judge M. J. of Detroit's "Captain H. H. McD" and "F. F." were among the seven he listed.

Mrs. Bracy's attorneys promptly asked a bill of particulars.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Twelve persons were injured, some of them seriously, today when an explosion of gas damaged a warehouse of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company here. The explosion released ammonia fumes from the refrigerating plant and some of the victims were affected by the fumes. Three women, a boy and five men were taken to hospitals.

Alas for Poor Heaven-Eyes! Great Mogul Turns Up Here

Miss Lillian Wallace, of Kirkwood, appears to have the laugh on Henrietta Zander, who lost the Great Mogul diamond and Uncle Bim Gump's millions at one fell swoop when she flew into a tantrum and broke their betrothal because the gem was stolen. A special guard, it is feared, will have to be engaged to protect the stone (see it shine!) pictured above before its identity can be determined.

Somewhere today the sun is shining brightly, and birds are singing. Somewhere gay voices are chirruping, and the laughter of little children rings happily through the crisp autumn air. But not to Uncle Bim Gump. To him all is darkness and despair. The first day of October, instead of providing an ecstatic sip of the nectar of conjugal bliss, is a draught of bitter gall and Dead Sea apples.

Haven Eyes will not be at the altar. Henrietta Zander, the seductive widow, has been back the ring. All because the Great Mogul diamond is gone.

Or is it? What is it that the smiling young lady pictured above holds so carefully? Can it be that she is fingering this greatest of all Indian-cut gems—the Great Mogul? It seems beyond all possibility that the priceless stone is in Atlanta and yet—

Tuesday afternoon a somber, mysterious person walked into the editorial room of The Constitution. He was beetle-browed, hunch-backed and had long white whiskers, almost down to his ears. Seeing him, half a dozen reporters thought at first he was a bill collector and hastily put on their emergency face masks, or, if they were conveniently under desks. Somebody took him to be Wayward Boye in disguise, but he dispelled this illusion by pulling a slice of watermelon from a hidden pocket, taking a hunk out with his teeth and spitting the seeds indiscriminately about the room. Wayward has no teeth and always swallows watermelon seeds.

Without a word he walked silently to the city editor's desk and laid down a small package, then disappeared almost as quickly as he had appeared.

When the package was fearfully opened here is what was found:

"Gentlemen—

"Enclosed you will find what I believe to be the Great Mogul diamond. Please forward to the detectives on the case for investigation.

"I feel sorry for Uncle Bim and thought this might help speed up the wedding.

"In case you find this not to be the original, please return.

"Yours very truly,

"W. J. BONE, JR., Pres.,

"All-Nite Detective Agency."

What do you make of that, Watson? Is there, in the confines of our fair city some master crook who made away with the great Indian diamond that was lost in the latter part of the 17th century and dug up by agents of Uncle Bim Gump? Is it the man with the one leg who made tracks about the windows? Was the mysterious messenger the fiendish Charles who took him to be Wayward Boye in disguise, but he dispelled this illusion by pulling a slice of watermelon from a

AYORA WITHDRAWS HIS RESIGNATION

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Sept. 30.—(UN)—President Isidro Ayora, in a message to congress tonight, withdrew the resignation which he had submitted yesterday, according to an official dispatch from Quito.

The president, in submitting his resignation, said that he did so to avert a governmental crisis. Pressure was brought upon him at once to remain in office.

The refusal of congress to accept President Ayora's resignation had been a surprise to the nation. A majority of the senate had been understood to be opposed to the president. His resignation was understood to have been tendered because they were disinclined to co-operate with him in measures he thought essential to the financial and economic stability of Ecuador.

The systematic opposition to the president in the senate was headed by Senator Coloma, of Tungurahua province. Senator Coloma's attack originally was directed against Julio Moreno, former minister of interior and head of the ministry, who resigned earlier this week, precipitating the crisis.

Coloma accused Minister Moreno of having forced Governor Sevilla, of Tungurahua, out of office by means Acceptance of a $9,000 bribe to put through council a $30,000 viaduct damage settlement was charged to ex-City Clerk Walter C. Taylor, twice convicted of bribery, in an indictment returned against Taylor Tuesday by the Fulton county grand jury. The amount of the alleged bribe is the largest yet uncovered by the jury's investigation of city hall graft.

George B. Spence, attorney for Thomas B. Brady, viaduct area property owner, was said by the grand jury to have paid the money to Taylor under an "unlawful agreement" entered into in 1927.

The new indictment against Taylor was said to be the first development in the opening of a grand jury investigation of city hall funds. It marks the return of the grand jury's attention to city hall affairs after considerable time spent in probing affairs at City hospital.

Further investigation of city improvement matters will be taken up late this week by the grand jury, it was said. The last bond issue was one of $5,000,000 passed in 1927 for viaducts, schools and the new city hall.

Brady's suit against the city of Atlanta for damages arising from construction of the Pryor street and Central avenue viaducts was pending in the federal district court at the time of the alleged bribe and compromise settlement, according to the indictment. Spence was one of several witnesses before the grand jury.

Solicitor General John A. Boykin said that Taylor will be required to give an additional $2,000 bond under the new indictment. Taylor already is under substantial bonds, of which $5,000 is in supersedeas bonds pending appeal to the state supreme court on his two convictions for bribery.

Taylor Tuesday night said he had not seen a copy of the indictment, and preferred not to comment on it until he had read it.

$9,000 Bribery Charged.

Taylor is charged with bribery, the indictment alleging that on July 2, 1927, while clerk of council of Atlanta, and as such in a position of confidence, trust and clerkship in the legislative department of the city, said

Coste, Bellonte Reception To Rival Lindbergh Ovation

Plans Being Made To Handle Record Crowd at Airport; Elaborate Functions Arranged.

When the renowned airplane "Question Mark" taxis to a halt Monday afternoon at Candler field, its internationally famous crew, Coste and Bellonte, will be greeted with an ovation from Atlanta citizens rivaled only by the one accorded to Charles Lindbergh on another October afternoon two years ago. One hundred special police have been detailed by Mayor Ragsdale to handle the crowds at the field, it was announced Tuesday.

Plans for the reception of the trans-Atlantic fliers at Candler field Monday afternoon, and for their entertainment Monday night at a banquet sponsored by the city will be completed at a meeting of the mayor's committee to be held at the Ansley hotel. Members of the committee, besides Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, are Gregory C. Bowden, John K. Ottley, Jr., W. B. Hartfield and L. O. Mosley. A Gallic touch will be added to the reception at Candler field when Mlle. Lydia Vinour, representing the Alliance Française, greets the fliers in their native language, and a group of children of French residents of Atlanta strew their path to the waiting automobiles with flowers. Following the ceremonies at the airport Captain Coste and Lieutenant Bellonte and their party will be escorted by the official welcoming committee, headed by Charles Lorrains, French consul, to their suites at the Ansley hotel, where they will make their headquarters during their stay in Atlanta.

On Monday night following the reception a banquet in honor of the fliers will be held at the Ansley hotel. The following committee is in charge of arrangements: B. S. Barker, chairman; John K. Ottley, Jr., vice chairman; T. M. Smith, Jesse Draper and Gregory C. Bowden. On Tuesday at 1 o'clock the fliers will be entertained at a public luncheon at the Atlanta Athletic Club by the Aero Club of Atlanta, and on Tuesday night at a dinner at the Piedmont Driving Club by the Alliance Française. Among those invited to attend an aviation conference, which will precede the luncheon, and to the festivities connected with the Coste-Bellonte visit are: Howard E. Coffin, Sapelo, and Alfred Jones, of Sea Island Beach. Ten delegates will be invited from Savannah, ten from Brunswick, and representatives from Macon, Columbus, Athens, Americus and other cities.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover Felicitates Girl Scouts

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wearing the official uniform of the Girl Scouts of America, today attended the preliminary session of the sixteenth annual national convention of the organization. Mrs. Hoover is honorary president of the Girl Scouts. After arriving here early this morning Mrs. Hoover was the guest at breakfast of Governor and Mrs. Harry G. Leslie. She attended a meeting of the directors of the Girl Scouts national organization and later was the luncheon guest of Mrs. Nicholas P. Brady, of New York, chairman of the board of directors. Mrs. Hoover will attend the formal opening of the convention tomorrow and will depart in the evening for Cleveland, where she will join the president, who is to speak in that city at the annual convention of the American Bankers' Association.

CARSWELL'S FINAL PLEA IS FOR DEBT PAYMENT

Says That During the Campaign He Has Taken People Into His Confidence.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Sept. 30.—George H. Carswell, in an address delivered here tonight, concluded his presentation of the platform upon which he bases his candidacy for governor.

"I have insisted throughout this campaign," the speaker said, "that my campaign be confined as closely to relevant facts and statements as my opponent would permit. My associates and I must confess that I have shared their feeling to some extent, have represented the fact that my opponent has refused to join us in a fair, calm and dispassionate presentation of the real issues in this campaign and let the people decide from that presentation tion which of us should be honored with the governorship.

"My friends, who have been associated with me in the conduct of this campaign have agreed with me that we should take the people of the state into our confidence; that every agreement we have made should be published in the newspapers of the state and that we should tell the people what we would not do just as freely as we would tell them what we would do. This may or may not have been good politics. But I will tell you, as I have told the people in a hundred other communities, that I do not want to be governor of the state of Georgia if my election depends upon a single statement made for vote-catching purposes and which cannot be carried out by the victor. "I do not want to be governor of a state that repudiates its debts. I do not want to be in charge of the governor's office when some old veteran totters into the executive office and asks why his pension has not been paid. I do not want to be governor when some poor mother comes into the executive offices and wants to know why her insane son is confined in the common jail instead of being given proper treatment in the asylum at Milledgeville. I do not want to be governor when the mother of some poor tubercular child begs me to use my influence to gain admission for that child to the sanitarium at Alto and be compelled to say that I cannot help her because the state of Georgia has not paid the 1927 and 1928 appropriations made for the benefit of that son. I do not want to be governor and have to say that when some one asks about the illiteracy of the state of Georgia that it is because that great state has failed to pay the money it promised the common schools.

"I have proposed a definite, specific way of paying the debts of the state that will enable whoever is governor to administer his office without feeling that he is the chief executive of a state whose people do not admit their obligation to meet a promise to pay. My opponent, for some reason, has failed to advocate any plan that can possibly pay these debts without adding to the already intolerable tax burden. My faith in the people of Georgia is great enough to make me believe they want these debts paid. My faith in their intelligence is great enough to make me believe they understand I am the only candidate for the governorship who will pay these debts without increasing their tax burdens, and I have enough faith in their ability to add simple figures to the extent that they will know my plan will not delay the building of a single road for more than 90 days."

Consistency Stressed By Judge Hardeman

In the last message from Carswell headquarters Tuesday, Judge R. N. Hardeman, manager of the Carswell campaign, stressed that the campaign was winding up on the same definite and constructive platform on which it had started.

He said in part: "In the beginning of the campaign Mr. Carswell's candidacy was projected and planned on a definite and constructive platform. Throughout the campaign we have remained consistent, and as the curtain falls we stand just where we stood in the beginning. "As the people of this state have grasped the issue and understood the position taken by Mr. Carswell, they have in increasing numbers rallied to his standard. After having been in intimate and close touch with men whom we can trust in every county in Georgia, I can with every confidence now state that Mr. Carswell's nomination Wednesday is assured. To make this victory overwhelming it is only required that those who believe in Mr. Carswell's experience, integrity and ability—and those who believe the debts of this state should be paid—all remain active and enthusiastically at work for our cause until the last ballot is in the box.

"Through many interviews and open letters and public addresses we have sought daily to have Mr. Russell declare himself on the most important issue in this campaign. Constantly he has declined to state it. He has never denied he spoke against the appropriation bill of 1927 which plunged Georgia into debt, nor has he denied that after speaking against this appropriation bill he then voted for it. Nor has he denied, in fact he boasts, he went to the governor and sought to have him veto a bill he had voted for.

"Let's again emphasize the tragic fact that because of this act of Mr. Russell Georgia today faces a debt of nearly $6,000,000 to the common schools, the insane asylum, the Confederate veterans, the Alto sanitarium and the university system.

"In the beginning of this campaign I promised the people of Georgia I would keep faith and constantly present to them the definite proposal of Mr. Carswell for the payment of Georgia's debts. I propose now at the last hour to still keep faith and redeem my pledge.

"There is no money in the treasury to pay these sacred obligations to schools, veterans, insane, etc. It must be had. We say the taxes shall not be increased. That no 'nuisance' tax will be levied to burden the people.

"We have declared, we are ardent and strong advocates of good roads, yet, faced with the alternative that we must either pay this debt by increased taxes or taxation from other sources or use a fund available for this purpose. We have chosen the way that will add no additional burdens and at the same time not seriously affect road building in Georgia.

"Surely Georgians will agree that at this time, when we are all poverty stricken, there should be no further taxes levied. Surely Georgians want their schools open, their insane cared for, their stricken children with tuberculosis treated at Alto. I have a letter in my pocket from the wife of a distinguished lawyer in Georgia, appealing to me to use my influence to get her stricken husband into the insane asylum at Milledgeville. It would make a stone cry if it could read the letter I have in my hands, and yet we are told this poor afflicted Georgian cannot get into the insane asylum for a year to come, while his wife has him confined in a private home.

"God knows that with $17,000,000 for road building in Georgia we can surely afford to take for just a few months $5,000,000 of this $17,000,000 and pay these honest sacred obligations to the schools of Georgia, her insane asylum and other institutions just mentioned, including our Confederate veterans.

"I defy any ardent supporter of Mr. Russell to point out one single word he has ever uttered that offered relief for this situation."

Rivers Makes Final Appeal to Friends

Final appeal to those who supported him in the first primary to vote for George H. Carswell today was made in a statement issued Tuesday by former State Senator E. D. Rivers. The statement in part is as follows: "I wish again to express my deep appreciation for the loyal support given me by my friends in the first primary in the present governor's race.

"There has been no effort on my part to deliver my friends who supported me in the first primary to Mr. Carswell. However, in the speeches I have made face to face with the people of Georgia in the last two weeks I have appealed to them upon a basis of the principles which he advocates for their support of Mr. Carswell, and not upon a trade basis.

"I believe the issue in the campaign is squarely between the school children of the state, the unfortunate insane people, the old soldiers and the eleemosynary institutions of the state, on one side, and the Holder-Russell combination of contractors and machinery people of the state, on the other side. "If the people of the state are interested in our school children, our old soldiers, our insane, the University of Georgia and its branches and the other necessary institutions of the state, as I know they are, they will vote for George Carswell for governor. If they wish the state in debt or levy additional taxes and also continue the domination of Georgia politics by the Holder forces, including the machinery people and contractors, then they will vote for Dick Russell."

RUSSELL'S CAMPAIGN EXPENSES $3,848.71

Richard B. Russell's first campaign for governor cost $3,848.71, according to a sworn statement published by him in Atlanta Tuesday. Copy of the statement, however, had not reached the office of the comptroller general at the hour of closing Tuesday afternoon.

No statement of expenses of George H. Carswell, Russell's opponent in the run-over primary, had been either published or received at the comptroller general's office. It was indicated, however, that both Russell and Carswell had mailed their statements during the day, as required by law, and that they accordingly would be received at the capitol this morning.

Russell's statement showed expenses of $3,848.71, of which he said he contributed $2,248.71 from personal funds. Other contributors were listed as W. J. Russell $25; R. B. Russell, $250; E. A. Perry, $225; Jim Peterson $100. In the list of expenditures the largest item, $1,078.32 went for advertising and radio. Stationery and printing totaled $810.17, traveling expenses $707.90, and clerical help only $352.70.

Other Expenditures. R. De T. Lawrence, candidate for pension commissioner, showed expenses of $434.27, and M. T. Duggan, renominated for superintendent of schools, $510.50, of which Duggan said he personally paid $225, and his family and friends the remainder. Lawrence said all his expenditures were from personal funds.

Joe Quillian, who ran for judge of the court of appeals, showed campaign expenses of $857, all from his own pocket.

Other candidates for governor and aspirants for a number of other offices had yet to file their reports, though today was the last day for making the return.

Senator William J. Harris, renominated in the September 10 primary for another six-year term, spent $10,400 during his campaign, as compared with $55,320.83 spent by John M. Sinton, his unsuccessful opponent, according to the expense account filed Tuesday.

Harris Report Unavailable.

Harris, in his affidavit, explained as he did not have his campaign books available in Washington, some of the amounts might be changed slightly. His expenses for advertising were about $7,000, he said, about $200 for telephone calls, about $125 for headquarters rent, $400 for incidentals, and about $1,500 for unpaid expenses.

Contributors to the fund included J. J. Haverly, $200; Walter and William Candler, $200; Cator Woolford, $500; John E. Otterly, $500; Ronald Ransom, $500; Bolling H. Jones, $500; R. G. Clay, $700; Mrs. Henry Heinz, $100; General Peter Harris, $400; W. S. Coleman, $500; Fair Debt, $1,000; O. D. Gorman, $500; C. C. Dunn, $150; Paul Jones, $100. Aside from Senator Harris, Hal M. Stanley, re-elected as commissioner of commerce and labor, indicated he spent $766.74; John Wilson, successful candidate for secretary of state, $2,094.54, and Eugene Talmadge, renominated for commissioner of agriculture, spent $1,115.50.

Just because coffee is brown

How careful you are to have your coffee just right. The taste, the body and all the fine touches of quality that go into a cup of coffee—all these are so much more important than the mere fact that it is "brown." There are many things that make coffee brown.

But taste is the thing that counts.

Shortenings, too, even though they may be white, can be quite different. They are made differently. The Wesson Oil people, when they make Snowdrift, use an oil as choice as a fine salad oil. And a little extra care sends it to you pure, fresh and sweet . . . good to eat all by itself. Free from animal fats, Snowdrift comes to you sealed pure and fresh in an air-tight can. Until you break the seal on that can, no other hands have touched it.

And remember that you need something pure and good to cook with, because in baking or frying, you really eat the shortening you use. It comes to your table as an important part of the food. And nothing can be too good for you to eat.

Snowdrift is at its lowest price in years.

RUSSELL PREDICTS HIS VICTORY TODAY

Gubernatorial Candidate Aims Final Blow at "Factionalism."

Expressing confidence that "the people will win an overwhelming victory," Richard B. Russell, Jr., closed his campaign for governor Tuesday night with a statement in which he confidently said, "I will have a large majority of popular and county unit votes" when the returns are all in.

The statement follows:

"Reports from all over the state

indicate beyond question that the people will win an overwhelming victory Wednesday. I am not making any extravagant claims as to the number of counties which will give me their votes, but one thing is certain—after the balloting is over I will have a large majority of popular and county unit votes.

"I wish to thank the friends who are carrying on our fight so enthusiastically, and urge them to see that all voters go to the polls and express themselves at the ballot box. The issues are clear and the people will not permit a factional system of politics to longer thrive at their expense.

"I extend to my friends my sincere thanks for the splendid assistance they have rendered in the fight we have made.

"When I take oath of office as governor of this state, I hope my friends who have worked so diligently and unselfishly in my behalf will know that we have won and that their labor in routing the professional politicians will bring a new era of prosperity and happiness to Georgia.

Russell, in Final Talk, Urges Big Vote Today

Richard B. Russell, Jr., in his final address of the campaign in Atlanta, Thursday night urged every voter in the state to cast his ballot in the run-over primary today.

"Tomorrow's primary is the most important election to be held in Georgia since reconstruction days," he said. "I urge every citizen of this state to exercise the duty and privilege of voting by going to the polls and expressing their choice as to who shall be the governor for the next two years.

"The people will say by their ballot tomorrow whether the office of governor of Georgia belongs to the people and that the people are still sovereign, or that the office of governor of Georgia is the personal property of a little group of ring politicians.

Whether a man named Russell or one named Carswell shall be governor for the next two years is of passing importance. The important question is whether the people of this state will select their governor at the ballot box or whether they will permit representatives of special interests and moneyed manipulators of politics to use their highest office as a personal chattel, to be the subject of barter and trade at secret midnight conferences and select a governor for them. Are the boys and girls of Georgia to be taught that by hard work and honest dealings they may aspire to any position within the gift of the people, or shall we change the ideals of the founders of this country and tell these boys and girls that it will be necessary for them to serve an apprenticeship in the service of selfish interests and political rings and then trace their way into offices belonging to the people?

No Jobs Promised.

"In announcing my candidacy for governor, I stated that I had not sought permission to enter the campaign from any political machine or ring or from the selfish interests that usually finance campaigns for governor. I pledged the people of Georgia that I would not promise a single political job belonging to the people to obtain political support and that I would not accept any campaign contributions which would tie my hands after my election. My announcement further stated that the time had come in Georgia to stop the excessive use of money in political campaigns and to stop trading in the people's offices and to take the government of Georgia away from the factions directed by the little group of politicians who have occupied the throne room for so long, and restore it to the people of the state.

"I have kept faith with the people on these promises, and the people took up the fight, and without any elaborate campaign organization I led the field of five candidates in a series of victories, in unit votes and, by more than 7,000 popular votes. It has been pointed out how agencies of government, supposed to serve the people, have been perverted to selfish political uses at the expense of tax money wrong from the people. We have seen how factionalism has caused the government of the people to be used to perpetuate the power of a political ring, without regard to the cost in tax money or the suffering it may cause. The most of government has greatly increased in Georgia, but the institutions which serve the average man are silted and starved while useless factional officials have fattened at the expense of the taxpayers.

Factionalism Hit.

"A factional administration will never reorganize the state government and abolish useless political jobs, for such jobs are the tools employed by factionalism to maintain itself in power. These jobs are the considerations of the political trades. The government of Georgia must be overhauled and political jobs and departments must be reduced to conform to the needs of the average citizen and taxpayer rather than the needs of political rings.

"My candidacy represents the cause of the taxpayer and economy in government as against the political parasites, and these job holders will do well to fight me because after my election I shall make every effort to secure the passage of a bill reorganizing the state government and abolishing all the useless political machine jobs regardless of the political influence or prominence of the individual holding such job. This will not only help Georgia to get out of debt but will be an assurance that the state will be kept out of debt and that tax money belonging to school teachers, the sanitarium for the insane and the old soldiers will be paid them promptly and not wasted in expenses at the state capitol.

"We can work the state out of debt, and these debts will be paid in my administration as governor of this state. The debts can be paid by reversing the order of things which caused them to be created. Georgia was placed in debt by waste and extravagance in our state government, to support the factional system of politics with tax money. We must keep out of debt through a program of retrenchment and economy and by abolishing all sinecures and useless political jobs.

"To arrange for the immediate payment of the most pressing debts of the state, including those due the Confederate pensioners, the state sanitarium for the insane and the money due to the common schools under the Barrett-Rogers act, I shall recommend that the legislature reduce to cash some of the non-essential property of the state and apply it to the payment of the debts. Our supreme court has repeatedly held that this can be legally done; and I hope that the people of Georgia will not be deceived by the continued misstatements of those who oppose my candidacy that there is no way of legally paying the debts by using the state's property.

Campaign on High Plane.

"Though abused and misrepresented by my Siamese twin opponents as few men in Georgia have been, I have kept my campaign on a high plane and have sought to be fair with the people of Georgia. I have not misled them by making promises that are impossible of fulfillment. I have placed before them what I regard as a platform of conservative pledges for the next two years, and have promised them that if they elect me, as I believe they will do, that I would be the governor of Georgia and not the puppet of some political ring or selfish interest. I ask you to bear in mind that Mr. Rivers consistently charged, before the first primary, that the election of Mr. Carswell meant two more years of Hardmanism and business administration and would turn back the wheels of congress in Georgia for at least 100 years, as he said that Mr. Carswell's election meant a continuation of the spoil system in politics. Rivers assailed the Carswell plan of diversion of tax money as being nothing short of treason to the state, stating that it would take $2 of the people's money to pay $1 indebtedness.

"At the famous midnight conference, something may have glittered and turned on a new light, which caused Mr. Rivers to change his mind, but almost every former Rivers' man I have seen agrees with Mr. Rivers' first statement, and his former supporters have not looked for the glittering light which caused Mr. Rivers to seek the name of governor without consulting the people to whom the office belonged, even if it required of him treason to the state, as he had denominated.

"Starting in a field of five candidates, the people of Georgia recognized my cause as theirs and gave me more than 7,000 more votes on September 10 than Mr. Carswell received. The faction now in power may resort to any means they see fit and may continue their system of midnight trades in the people's offices; special interests may pour money as if it were water in an effort to debauch the electorate of this state, and all kinds of political falsehoods may be disseminated. I put them all on notice now that the office of governor of Georgia cannot be traded, bought, sold nor handed down this time. Although double-crossed, vilified and a victim of political trickery, I face tomorrow's ballot with supreme confidence that the people of this state will not be coerced nor driven nor bought into depriving them of the victory which is justly theirs, and that the setting of tomorrow's sun will mark the end of factionalism in Georgia.

Jewish 'Yom Kippur' Will Begin Tonight

To the strains of the famous religious melody, "Kol Nidre," the Jewish congregations of Atlanta will usher in the most sacred holiday of Hebrew tradition, "Yom Kippur," after sunset tonight.

On this occasion, which constitutes the Day of Atonement, the worshippers ask forgiveness for sins of the past year through penitential prayer and a day of fasting. It marks the closing of the ten-day sacred period begun with Rosh Hashana, the Jewish new year.

Due to the construction of a new temple, the congregation of Rabbi David Marx will hold Yom Kippur services in the First Presbyterian church at Peachtree and Sixteenth streets. Tonight's services will be started at 8 o'clock. The holiday continues from sunset tonight until sunset Thursday night. Thursday's services will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning.

The holy day will be observed at the Ahavath Achim synagogue, beginning at 6:30 o'clock tonight and at 7 o'clock Thursday morning. Rabbi Harry H. Epstein will deliver the sermons. With services conducted by Rabbi Tobias Geffen, the Shearith Israel congregation will start its services at 5:30 o'clock tonight and at 7 o'clock Thursday morning. Services will be held at the same time by the Or Shalom congregation, with Rabbi M. Sarafaty officiating, and by the Anshe Sfard congregation.

Georgia Game Laws

Protect Migration

Georgia game laws officially take cognizance of the southward migration of birds when winter comes, Peter Twitty, state game and fish commissioner, explained to inquiring newspapermen Tuesday.

Proof that they do, Mr. Twitty said, is to be found in the 50-day closed season on doves. The season opens September 1 and runs 30 days, when it closes until November 20. This is done in order that the north Georgians can get 30 days' sport, the birds 50 days and the south Georgia sportsmen the rest of the open season.

Craycroft Will Seek City Council Post

RIVETS MAKE THE TANK-CAR OIL-TIGHT

The TORRID ZONE STEEL FURNACE

is gas-tight and dust-tight because it is riveted

LENNOX TORRID ZONE FURNACE for soft coal with outer casing removed, showing riveted construction. (A) Extra-long smoke chamber, or radiator, squeezes maximum of heat from smoke before it can escape up chimney. (B) The specially designed fuel-saving fire-pot with locomotive grates and other features. You can see why this furnace is guaranteed for 10 years and why its average life, based on the service records of thousands of Torrid Zones, is 21 years.

WARM air, the choice of all real authorities on healthful heating, reaches perfection through the Torrid Zone. The special construction of this longer-lasting furnace insures clean, warm air, at all times free from fumes—and brighter and happier homes.

For just as the tank-car is made leak-proof by hot riveting and cold-calking... so the Torrid Zone Furnace of boiler-plate steel is made gas, smoke and dust-tight.

That means no gas-tainted air when the furnace is freshly fueled or banked for the night. No dust or smoke from the registers following a shake down. Even the cellar or furnace-room will be cleaner than you ever thought it could be, because of the unusually snug firing and ash doors. Every part of the Torrid Zone is as tight as a drum.

Two other essentials to health and comfort—humidity and ventilation—obtainable only with warm air systems are a part of the Torrid Zone. The humidifier has twice the evaporating area inside the casing of ordinary water pans, and it is positioned for rapid evaporation. Air circulation is guaranteed when an authorized Lennox Furnace man installs according to the Standard Code.

The efficiency of a Torrid Zone magnifies your coal pile. Oversized heating surface causes Torrid Zone furnaces to produce from 10% to 20% more heat from the fuel than other furnaces, hence they will heat with less fuel than other furnaces will consume. Models for soft coal, coke, hard coal, lignite, wood, gas or oil.

Come in and see why the Torrid Zone is the most desirable furnace that heating science has yet devised. Look at its sturdy locomotive grates and "lazy" shaker. Get the booklet that explains its features in detail. We will gladly furnish plans and estimates for either new or old homes or other buildings. Factory blueprints obtained for special problems. Made by the LENNOX FURNACE COMPANY, Syracuse, New York—Marshalltown, Iowa—Toronto, Canada.

Unwilling Witness Gets 5 Days in Jail

A prosecuting witness who thought better of her role and recanted according to court officers, Tuesday afternoon was in Fulton tower for a five-day stay, under an order by Judge E. D. Thomas, of Fulton superior court.

The unwilling witness, Miss Grace Taylor, was first sentenced by Judge Thomas to serve 20 days, but the time was later cut by the judge to five days for contempt of court. Miss Taylor was to have been the state's star witness against J. M. Carroll in Carroll's trial for assault with intent to murder. On the stand, however, she said that she was not sure who cut her. The hearing was said to have taken place on June 2. The case will be argued this morning, all evidence having been presented Tuesday.

Boy Held as Vagrant Eats Deputy's Lunch

Jim White, deputy sheriff, Tuesday bought his lunch, instead of eating chicken brought from home. That, to anyone who knows Jim, is news, for the genial deputy has brought his noon-time meal from home ever since courthouse circles can remember.

The reason Jim bought his lunch is this: A negro boy wandering about the courthouse during the morning found Jim's lunch cache on the second floor, and promptly put the edibles to the use for which they were intended. Lunch over, the boy wandered about the courthouse, through the judges' chambers, and into the grand jury witness room. Failing to give satisfactory reasons for his presence there, and exciting suspicion as to his mental capacity, the boy was sent to Fulton tower under a vagrancy charge while officers pondered the question of what to do with him.

Winners in Singing Contest Announced

Prizes awarded during the singing competitions held at the recent convention here of the United Sacred Harp Musical Association were announced Tuesday by a committee of judges consisting of W. R. Davis, of Birmingham; J. W. Simmons, of Atlanta; Leon Hood, of Carrollton; W. M. Medlock, of Conyers, and W. T. Costin, of Dallas.

Miss Meiba Head, of Atlanta, was awarded first prize of $20, while prizes of $15 each were given to LaFayette Harris, of Atlanta; Miss Lola Jones, of Clatskanie, Texas; Miss Marie Downs, Gadsden, Ala. and Miss Fanny Caswell, Roopville, Ga.

Prizes of $10, $5 and $2.50 were awarded to more than a score of other competitors.

Penney Sees 'Chains' As Community Aids

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The "community-mindedness of chain stores" was a point J. C. Penney, founder of the J. C. Penney Company, sought to emphasize to the National Chain Store convention delegates today.

Chain stores, he declared, succeed in proportion to the extent to which they identify themselves with community interests.

"No business can reach its highest development in any locality unless it is community-minded," he said. "American people are keenly sensitive to local activities. We are a race of joiners. The combination of the joiner spirit with good common sense has brought increased sales volume to chain stores."

Penney said the chain store fulfills one definite obligation in citizenship when it "places the stamp of business approval on a community by selecting it for a location."

EARL OF BIRKENHEAD, BRITISH GENIUS, DIES

Lawyer, Politician and Colorful Englishman Passes at Age of 58.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The Earl of Birkenhead, great lawyer, brilliant politician and one of the most romantic and colorful figures in British public life, died of pneumonia today at the age of 58.

The announcement by his physicians said: "The Earl of Birkenhead passed peacefully away at a quarter past eleven this morning. There had been a further increase in the pneumonia infection, and the heart muscles, feeling the effect of this, dilated and failed."

EARL OF BIRKENHEAD.

Death was in some measure unexpected despite the fact that Lord Birkenhead had been ill for some time, although grave alarm was felt yesterday when it was announced that he was suffering from a recurrence of the lung trouble which troubled him in the summer.

King George and almost all the peacemakers of Great Britain today sent messages of sympathy to the bereaved family or otherwise paid tribute to the man who at the early age of 47 became lord high chancellor of England. Even statesmen who experienced the full bitterness of his political opposition testified to their affection for him as a personal friend.

To the man in the street, who even now is disposed to think of "Frederick Edwin Smith" or "F. E." rather than the Earl of Birkenhead, it seems as if the world will be more drab for his passing.

"No Advantages." "The Smith of my own fortune" is the translation of the Latin motto he adopted when raised to the peerage, and Birkenhead's career will long be held an example of what brilliant intellect and hard work will do for a man who started with no advantages.

In the death of the Earl of Birkenhead England lost not only one of her most picturesque personalities but also a man who by common consent possessed one of the most brilliant minds in the country.

Brilliant was the keynote of his career. It was not that he could not work as hard as any six normal men when he felt inclined—or long years during his early struggles at the bar, his industry was proverbial—but there was nothing of the steady plodder about him.

He was simply genius with the ability of genius to plunge to the heart of a knotty point whether law or in politics while most clever men were still nibbling at its edges, and with also the waywardness of genius who is law unto himself, and who fights his battles mostly easily alone than in co-operation with other men. Yet with all his brilliance Lord Birkenhead's career was something of a disappointment—possibly a disappointment to himself and certainly a disappointment to other men. To suggest that a man who held three important cabinet posts and attained to the dignity of lord chancellor—a place second only to the Archbishop of Canterbury in those offices to which a commoner may aspire—may seem ridiculous.

Flashes Like Comet. With any other man it would be so, but when young Frederick Edwin Smith first flashed like a comet into the legal world, dazzled with his eloquence and astounded men twice his age with his extraordinary grasp of the most abstruse legal points, it was felt that there had arrived a new phenomenon in public life and that the entire course of English history might have been altered by this one man.

Perhaps it nearly was. When England was on the verge of civil war over the Irish question in early 1914 no name was more frequently on men's lips than that of "Galloper Smith," the redoubtable aide-de-camp of the Ulster leader, Lord Carson. But a revolver fired in the Balkans settled all of that and Galloper found another outlet for his adventurous temperament in France and Flanders. That too passed away. Galloper became a baronet and Lord Birkenhead and his majesty's secretary of state for India. Then the luck of politics and failing constitution conspired together and the great lawyer-politician withdrew not indeed from the public mind but from the front pages of the newspapers.

Few men in British history had more fervent admirers than he, and few have aroused more bitter animosity. A poem by G. K. Chesterton of which each verse ends "Chuck it, Smith," probably will remain known for a long time as one of the most bitter invectives ever perpetrated by a major poet.

There will be some who will quote it today. But generally friends and enemies alike will join in regret at the passing of a great fighter, a lawyer of almost superhuman ability and one of the most colorful personalities that have ever appeared on the British political stage.

EXHIBITORS RUSHING
TO GET SPACE AT FAIRMost Complete Program
Ever Attempted Here To Open Saturday.

With the Southeastern Fair, opening only three days away, last-minute details are being rushed to completion to make it one of the greatest educational, industrial, live stock and amusement attractions ever attempted in the south. The fair will open its gates at 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning with Governor L. G. Hardman, Mayor I. N. Bagdikian, members of the senior and Junior Chamber of Commerce and executives of the fair as honor guests.

Exhibitors are rapidly closing contracts for space and there was a general hurrying and scurrying around the park late Tuesday for space, and workmen have been busy the last two days arranging the booths.

Atlanta's 70,000 school children are anxiously looking forward to Monday, their first holiday of the fall term, which will be Children's Day at the fair. The youngsters will be admitted at reduced rates and an attractive amusement program has been planned.

Spelling Bee.

A feature of the day's activities will be the annual Georgia state spelling bee and the mammoth fireworks display at night. Each county in the state can send one representative to the contest, and the winner, in addition to being adjudged Georgia's champion speller, will receive a $100 cash award. Ten other cash prizes will be given for the next best spellers.

In the early entries, Georgia girls have a decided edge over their boy competitors. In the 11 entries, seven are girls, and Mrs. J. L. Waters, from Fulton county, makes the eighth, while only three boys are listed.

The early entries include: Miss Lucille Corbett, Atkinson county; Miss Rochelle Lualaba, Carroll county; Miss Elizabeth Nichols, DeKalb county; Miss Eunice Exum, Henry county; Carl Atkins, Newton county; Miss Irene Noel, Oglethorpe county; Miss Eva Driskell, Paulding county; Fred Oxford, Pike county, and Hugh Campbell, Walker county.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsoring the attendance, has planned special events for Tuesday and Wednesday. Thursday, Military Day, will be featured by afternoon and night sham battles, and on Friday, Press Day, newspapermen of Georgia will be honor guests.

Sports Day Program.

Motor boat, automobile and motorcycle racing will be a feature of Wednesday's Sport Day.

Extensive preparations are being made by officials of the Atlanta school system for the city school exhibits, which will be in the Liberal Arts building in conjunction with those of Georgia Tech and the various county schools. Miss Charlotte Smith, supervisor of art in the Atlanta schools, is general chairman of the educational committee.

One of nature's marine freaks in the form of a white shark, which was caught recently in Mobile bay, will be on exhibition, it is announced.

The shark was caught by N. P. and B. A. Sonzales, of Mobile, and shipped to Atlanta by A. J. Hudson, of Abe Fugazzi Company. It was secured by Rufus Ellis, Junior Chamber of Commerce member, and will be frozen in a block of ice said to be the only one of its kind ever caught on the United States coast line, the white shark is 50 inches in length.

Chicken Farm Named
In Injunction Plea

Do 300 to 400 chickens in a residential district constitute a nuisance? This interesting question was presented Tuesday to Judge G. H. Howard, of the motions division of Fulton superior court, when 24 residents of the Rock Springs road section in Morningside asked for an injunction to prevent the Crystal White-Farms, Inc., from maintaining a chicken farm in that vicinity.

The plaintiffs, represented by Attorney J. Mallory Hunt, charge that the farm violates the city zoning law, creates a danger to health and disturbs the petitioners. The farm is said to be operated by Helen Harrison and Fred E. Harrison, of 1850 North Rock Springs road, who were named as defendants. The plaintiffs claim the tract occupied by the farm is subject to Morningside title restrictions, prohibiting establishment of business houses. Judge Howard cited the defendants to respond to the injunction plea on October 11.

Mayson Off Saturday
For Census Court Tilt

City Attorney James L. Mayson will leave Atlanta Saturday to participate Monday in the argument of the Atlanta's census claims at Washington, he announced following receipt of a telegram telling him definitely of the time of the hearing before the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

The telegram came from Louis T. St. Louis, associated with C. Bascom Stimpert, noted Washington legal firm, which will represent Atlanta in her fight for a census enumeration of 300,000, instead of 270,000, the Atlanta borough figure, which the bureau of the census has announced it will print as Atlanta's 1930 census.

When William M. Stewart, director of census, made his final decision to list the borough figure as Atlanta's count, Atlanta filed a mandamus suit to compel the department to properly recognize Atlanta.

Stewart Exonerated
In Kendrick's Death

Exoneration of Andrew Stewart in the death of Bob Kendrick, who was killed in an automobile-motorcycle crash on July 27, was voted Tuesday by the Fulton county grand jury when it returned a no-bill after investigating a charge of involuntary manslaughter. Kendrick was said to have been thrown from a sidecar attached to Stewart's motorcycle when it struck an automobile on Boulevard, northeast.

Atlantan Shoots Self; Domestic Troubles Blamed

Charles T. Appleton, 30, of 78 Hillcrest avenue, Kirkwood, shot and critically wounded himself late Tuesday night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John B. White, sister and brother-in-law of his wife, with whom he had been living for two weeks ago. He was taken to Grady hospital, where it was said little hope is entertained for his recovery.

According to his wife, Mrs. Lois Appleton, 24, she left her husband's home two weeks ago after he had threatened her with a knife, and went to the White home, at 2 Anthony street. Shortly after 10 o'clock Tuesday night, witnesses said, Appleton appeared at the White residence and requested his wife to come onto the porch. When she declined, he entered the living room, in which a neighbor and Mrs. White sat talking with Mrs. Appleton.

Appleton was evidently under the influence of liquor, his wife said, and asked permission to leave his coat. Having done so, she added, he produced a pistol which he brandished. Frightened, she ran to the rear of the house screaming. There, she said, she heard a shot. Mr. and Mrs. White, with Mrs. Appleton, investigated and found Appleton lying on the floor, a bullet wound in his left chest, below the heart.

The Appletons have two children, aged seven and four.

CORDELE POWER QUIZ AUTHORIZED

tion for Atlanta, Augusta and other cities, was denied by Judge Howard, although he allowed the intervenors to appear at the public service commission. In passing on the case, Judge Howard overruled the commission's demurrer. The demurrer contended the power company had not made a case at law and that the matter was one solely for the commission.

In passing his order, Judge Howard said "the court does not intend to attempt limitation of the commission's delegated authority."

The commission, in the original order citing the power company to show cause why rates elsewhere should not be reduced to conform to the Cordele rates, charged that the company was voluntarily and claimed inevitable discrimination must follow.

Voluntary Reduction. In answer, the power company filed its suit for injunction, charging the commission's statement that the rate was voluntary and discrimination was inevitable had not been proved. Judge Howard remarked "that the order had been 'unfortunately worded.'"

Counsel for the commission contended the words complained of were used merely in the preamble to the order, and that the commission did not intend to imply the rates would

Election Day Slated to Dawn Fair and Cool

Election day in Georgia will dawn fair, but a little cooler than it was Tuesday, preliminary to a stretch of nice, pleasant, autumn weather with temperature, ranges between 56 and 75, the weather bureau forecast. Tuesday the expected clouds failed to show up and the temperature, as if making a final encore for summer, managed to touch 80. The minimum was 51 degrees.

bring unjust discrimination without a hearing.

Mr. Perry argued that the commission had no official notice of the company's action at Cordele, and that upon notice that rates there had been cut approximately 35 per cent issued an order citing the company to show why the action was taken.

"That is all the order means," Mr. Perry said. "We want to know exactly what happened and why it happened. The company has knowingly reduced a rate we found reasonable and just, and we want to know why." Counsel for the company said the cut was not voluntary, but made in self-defense after Crisp county erected its own power company.

Matter of Management. "It was simply a matter of management," power company attorneys argued. "We had a big investment there, and when the county plant was put in operation we cut rates to meet competition."

The commission has only the authority to fix maximum rates and no authority over management or minimum rates."

Counsel for the Municipal Rates Association sought intervention so the association could be made a party to the litigation. The idea was "merely to present our side of the question, and show that the rates charged at Cordele are just and should apply to other cities."

The court held that a rate hearing was wholly within the jurisdiction of the commission, and in denying the petition suggested that the association seek intervention at the hearing before the commission.

The commission now has the power to file exceptions to the ruling.

Mr. Perry said the commission's whole purpose is to find out if the low rates charged at Cordele "discriminate unjustly" and if the reduction was made voluntarily. He suggested to the court that no decision limiting authority of the commission be reached, and Judge Howard specified that his order in no way sought limitation of the commission's vested powers.

VIADUCT BRIBE CHARGED TO TAYLOR

office being an office of government in this state, he unlawfully and willfully received of and from George C. Spence $9,000 as a present and reward to influence his official behavior.

The giving and receiving of the present and reward was pursuant to and in consummation of a previous agreement and understanding between Taylor and Spence that the present and reward would be so given in return for the services of the clerk of council in obtaining from the city of Atlanta the sum of $30,000 "in full settlement in suit of Thomas B. Brady vs. City of Atlanta in the U. S. district court for the northern district of Georgia," which suit was a proceeding in equity pending in the court where by Brady sought to restrain the city of Atlanta from erecting the Prior street and Central avenue viaducts, the indictment alleges.

The purpose of the alleged unlawful agreement to give and receive the $9,000 included the influencing of Taylor's official behavior in the matter of procuring the $30,000 settlement of the suit, in that Taylor caused a resolution authorizing the settlement to be introduced in city council, and upon a favorable vote being obtained on the resolution, Taylor, as clerk of council, placed a rubber-stamped entry upon the resolution as follows: "Concurred in by Mayor Ragsdale and B. G. West, comptroller, drawn on by J. H. Ewing, Jr., treasurer of the city, payable at the Fulton National bank, in favor of 'Spence and Spence, as attorneys of record in the suit of Thomas B. Brady vs. City of Atlanta,' marked 'bond funds, 1926 issue,' 'department of bridges,' stating on its face that it was 'in full settlement in suit of Thomas B. Brady vs. City of Atlanta in the United States district court for the northern district of Georgia; per resolution of mayor and council, approved May 12, 1927.'"

The indictment further charges that Taylor as clerk of council then recorded the described actions and proceedings and caused them to be recorded in the official minutes of the general council of the city of Atlanta, and also caused to be recorded in the general council's official records the official "aye" and "nay" vote of the aldermen on the resolution.

Further, the true bill alleges, Taylor did then subsequently procure from the comptroller of the city the official check of the city for the $30,000 called for in the resolution, the check being signed by Mayor Ragsdale and B. G. West, comptroller, drawn on J. H. Ewing, Jr., treasurer of the city, payable at the Fulton National bank, in favor of "Spence and Spence, as attorneys of record in the suit of Thomas B. Brady vs. City of Atlanta," marked "bond funds, 1926 issue," "department of bridges," stating on its face that it was "in full settlement in suit of Thomas B. Brady vs. City of Atlanta in the United States district court for the northern district of Georgia; per resolution of mayor and council, approved May 12, 1927."

Taylor then, according to the indictment, delivered the check of the city of Atlanta in person to George C. Spence in "fulfillment of the aforesaid illegal agreement, and then in fulfillment of the said Spence's part of said agreement the said Spence did convey and give to Walter C. Taylor the sum of $9,000 in money as a present, reward and bribe."

Unknown Until 1926.

The true bill sets out that the alleged offense of bribery was unknown until 1930. It sets out the duties of the clerk of council as provided by lawful ordinances, and states: "And it also being then and there among the official duties of accused in his said office as clerk of council, to certify all official action by said general council on ordinances and resolutions upon the said ordinances and resolutions, and transmit the same, so certified, to the mayor of Atlanta for his official action thereon, and the mayor of Atlanta relied upon the correct performance of this duty by the clerk of council in passing upon ordinances and resolutions so transmitted to him by accused; and it was also the duty of said clerk of council to record the action of the mayor thereon in the official records of the general council kept by accused, said duties being established by custom and usage in the legislative department of the city of Atlanta."

The indictment contains a copy of the resolution authorizing acceptance of the offer of compromise by the plaintiff in the Brady suit, the resolution being offered by Councilman Moore. The true bill also contains two letters from Spence and Spence to Frank Neely, chairman of the bond commission in connection with the compromise offer.

Witnesses listed on the bill are George C. Spence, B. Graham West, I. N. Ragsdale, James L. Mayson and T. B. Brady.

Former Clerk Taylor, in addition to the charges on which he stands convicted, also is accused of bribery in connection with other transactions and is under indictment for extortion, a true bill of nine counts having been returned against him by the March-April grand jury.

The former official is under two separate 12-month sentences as a result of his having been convicted of accepting a bribe from Marvin C. Boone in connection with a West Peachtree sidewalk-laying project and for attempting to bribe J. A. Beall, one-time councilman, in connection with the application of Solomon Pihl for a permit to operate a pool and billiard room on Walton street opposite the postoffice.

With Fred Wilson, a merchant, the charge growing out of the purchase of the site of the present city hall, Wilson and Taylor are jointly named in the indictment.

Another indictment against the former city clerk names him and Councilman W. Paul Carpenter jointly and the former city clerk individually in connection with the alleged refunding of license fees to several jewelry auctioneers.

The nine-count extortion bill which is pending against the former city clerk includes and concerns a number of transactions which were incorporated in the first bribery charging indictment returned against him. He already has been tried on the bribery bill and was acquitted on all of the counts, save the one involving the transaction with Boone.

violating the constitution. The senator made public accusations against Moreno and sought to question him before congress on a motion for a vote of censure.

This move was blocked by Senator Trujillo, who succeeded, as a substitute measure, in having a committee named to seek an understanding between President Ayora and congress. This resolution pacified the opposition because it called for the resignation of three ministers—interior, public welfare and finance.

It appeared today that the president's resignation had won a large section of public opinion to his side. Military leaders continued to urge Ayora to remain in office, and their efforts were ultimately successful. They had sought to persuade him to retain the office he has held since 1925, despite the fact that if he insisted on resigning the government which succeeded him would unquestionably be military controlled.

Ecuador continued quiet, no disorders being reported in any section of the country.

Problems of Small Banks Hold Interest at Cleveland

American Bankers' Association Asked To Modify Opposition to Branch Banking.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The increasing difficulty of some banks, especially smaller ones, to operate profitably as independent units, held the attention of the resolutions committee of the American Bankers' Association tonight.

The committee had before it a recommendation that the association modify the stand it has taken in opposition to branch banking. The recommendation was made by the association's economic policy commission, which is the association's chief advisory body.

As an indication of the advisability of giving recognition to the branch banking movement, the report of the commission, presented by R. S. Hecht, president of the Hibernia Bank and Trust Company of New Orleans, and chairman of the commission, cited the increasing number of failures of unit banks and the growth of the group banking movement.

The commission took into consideration opposition of many people to large banking monopolies and said that while the question should not be ignored, it did not believe it presented a real menace. Hecht said that the movement of group banking is not a measure of Wall Street or any financial region to wrest control of this country's finances, but it arises out of present day economic necessities. He said the independent bank, if it operates profitably, should be allowed to remain, but if it cannot stay in business and there is a need for a bank in its territory, then a branch of a large bank should take its place.

"Official records show that in the year ended June 30 this year there were 758 bank suspensions with deposits of $353,500,000," Hecht said.

"In point of numbers this is the highest mortality in any year since the war, except 1924 when there were 915 suspensions and in 1927 when there were 831. In point of deposits it was the highest, even exceeding the the $297,800,000 reported in 1924, and $288,000,000 in 1927."

He said that during the last ten years about 5,700 banks have suspended, mostly in the agricultural districts, tying up gross deposits of almost $2,000,000,000.

The bank failure problem has been mostly that of rural banks. About 62 per cent of the failures were in places of less than 10,000 population.

NEW ZONE SUGGESTED
FOR PRODUCE TRUCKSPermanent Parking Lot on Spring Street To Be Proposed Before Council.

Establishment of a non-parking zone to bar produce trucks from parking on Central avenue and other streets in the vicinity of produce row, and first steps looking toward location of the trucks on a permanent parking lot bounded by Spring, Brotherton, Forsyth and Castleberry streets, will be before council for consideration of that body as the result of another hearing by the special council committee Tuesday afternoon.

Under a decision of the committee council will be requested to establish non-parking between 6 o'clock at night and 7 o'clock in the morning, thus barring the produce trucks from parking in that area.

Tentative plans for establishment of the permanent market place on which the trucks may be parked at all hours of the day and night, also will be offered to council, it was pointed out by Councilman J. W. Weaver, of the second ward, that the block in question could be obtained at a "reasonable price" and that it would solve permanently the perplexing problem.

Action of the special council group Tuesday followed appearance of a delegation from produce row asking that the trucks be moved. Among the delegation were J. Lawrence McCord, John M. McCullough and Aubrey Milam.

Thomas Slappey, attorney for the truck growers, objected to any change because of competition to produce row and called attention to the state and federal laws protecting the farmer in disposition of his crops.

Alderman P. L. Moon, chairman, declared that he would vote on the issue as a parking problem and for the best interests of the borough without taking into consideration any competitive objections which might have been raised.

If the parking lot can be obtained, it is planned to construct comfort stations, select a director of markets and provide other facilities to assist the farmer in marketing his products.

A. M. E. Ministers'
Union Holds Session

"The Essentials of the Ideal Pastor" was discussed Tuesday by Rev. D. W. Wiggs before the A. M. E. Ministers' Union, meeting at Big Bethel church. Dr. A. R. Cooper, vice president, presided, and Rev. R. H. Porter acted as secretary.

Bishop W. A. Fountain, head of the Sixth Episcopal district of his denomination in Georgia, emphasized value of seminary work, and Bishop J. S. Flipper, former member of the A. M. E. Ministers' Union, and now presiding bishop of Florida, spoke on the pastor's ecclesiastical claim and his value in community life. They were followed by Dr. B. G. Dawson and Dr. J. L. Butler.

Professor R. E. Mays and Rev. Joseph W. M. Nicholson, of the Institute of Social and Religious Research, New York, addressed the union in behalf of their mission, to which the body pledged its moral support.

The following heads of various committees made reports: Dr. John Harrison, T. J. Linton, B. V. Thornton, J. A. Hadley, J. T. Wilkerson, S. H. Rome, C. A. Wingfield, J. H. McFarlin, J. R. Fleming, H. D. Casady, J. F. Moses, S. S. Mauldin, L. D. Lincoln, D. L. Jacobs, M. C. Morris and W. O. Slade.

Ruth Hanna's Evidence
Framed, Nye Charges

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(UN)—The senate campaign expenditures committee during its investigation of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick in Chicago refused to receive evidence of wire tapping offered by the republican senatorial nominee's attorneys because it believed it was being "framed," Chairman Gerald P. Nye, revealed today.

Nye said that if the evidence which Mrs. McCormick wanted to offer had been taken, it might have required weeks of the committee's time to refute the testimony.

The committee chairman made his statement in commenting on a telegram from Senator Roscoe C. Patterson, republican, Missouri, a member of the committee, referring to the repudiation of the evidence.

Such action was taken, Nye said, because the committee "did not want to set the stage for a candidate to play upon for the balance of the campaign."

Nye said the evidence Mrs. McCormick wanted to offer was designed to show the wire tapping had been done at the indirect request of the committee by the officials of the committee, but that the so-called agent had no connection with the senate group.

Executive Committee
Members Wait Decision

Decision as to when newly elected members of the county executive committee officially begin their duties is expected to wait upon the democratic state convention although in some counties the new officials have already assumed charge of committee work, including the second primary election. No serious contests over the tangle have been reported.

COUNTY AND CITY GIFT TO LUCY COBB FOUGHT

Court Petition, Opposing Athens Appropriations, To Be Heard Saturday.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 30.—Judge W. W. Stark, of Commerce, will hear the petition to restrain the Clarke county board of commissioners from appropriating $2,500 to Lucy Cobb Junior college, it was learned Tuesday. He will preside at the hearing next Saturday in chambers at Commerce.

The petition was filed by Mayor A. G. Dudley, who has opposed appropriations by the city and county to Lucy Cobb and fought the proposal in the referendum held here several months ago, which won by a plurality of about 200 votes.

City council has already appropriated $5,000 to the school for this year, but that amount will be reduced to meet the county's appropriation. The city and county were authorized to appropriate $5,000 per year each to establish Lucy Cobb as a standard junior college in the referendum election.

Wolver M. Smith, Athens attorney, will represent the petitioners in the hearing Saturday. Others who have signed the petition with Mayor Dudley are H. L. Seagraves, member of city council; J. H. Patman, Robert Farbrough and R. E. Johnson, Mayor Dudley is a member of the board of trustees of Lucy Cobb. The petitioners contend that Lucy Cobb is a private school and hence should not be given the support of the city and county governments.

The Lucy Cobb trustees are allowing city and county high school graduates to attend the college by payment of only $15 fee as a result of the assistance given by the city and county.

Mr. Wallis was a member of a prominent family and was one of Winnetts' most prosperous farmers. He is survived by his wife, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Wallis; three daughters, Sarah, Barbara and Susan; and six sons, John, Ben, Neuben, Frank, Ernest and Ray.

Funeral services were held at Zion Hill church Tuesday afternoon.

Macon Store Loses $25 to White Bandits.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Two white bandits entered the Rogers store at Crump's Park, just before closing up tonight, held up the manager and fled with $25 of the day's receipts.

This was the second holdup in the Crump's Park section within the last few days.

Paul Ard, manager, was placing some canned goods on a shelf, and T. D. Castleberry, clerk, was standing nearby when the bandits entered.

"Look out there," shouted one of them.

Ard said he turned to find a pair of leeches in his head.

He said the man with the gun remarked that he was out of work, "had five children crying for food and was forced to rob."

While he was talking the other man rang up a "no sale" on the cash register and then removed the cash, placing it in his hat.

The two ran from the store, shouting a warning not to follow.

Courthouse Prayer Meetings Arranged

FORT VALLEY, Ga., Sept. 30.—When the Peach county courthouse and county offices gathered in the courtroom Monday morning, called friends and acquaintances of Sheriff George D. GEORGIAN NEAR DEATH AFTER KNIFE ATTACK

WAYCROSS, Ga., Sept. 30.—Joe McSwain, resident of the Ruskin section of Ware county, is believed to be in a dying condition here today, after approximately 200 slashes have been taken by physicians in an effort to "patch him up" following a knife attack alleged to have been made Monday by Jim Fullard, who is now being held by officers as a general brawl that followed a family quarrel near Ruskin.

Three persons, two of whom are painfully but not seriously injured, are being held in the Ware county jail. They are Jim Fullard, alleged to have slashed the knife that carved McSwain's body from head to foot, Ed Fullard and William Byrd.

'FAKE SALE' CHARGED IN LOAN AGENCY CASE

MACON, Ga., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Two operators of so-called small loan agencies here "faked" a sales agreement early this year in order to defraud the city of Macon out of a $300 license, one of them told Judge Malcolm D. Jones, of Bibb superior court, today as the court was making an effort to untangle a dispute between them.

B. Moore, one of the alleged owners of the Central Loan and Bonding Company, was on the stand in his own defense, in an action brought against him by W. W. Croon, another alleged owner. Pending the outcome, all properties of the business are in the hands of a receiver.

Moore claims that Croon is trying to take advantage of the "faked" bill of sale to confiscate the entire business.

The witness explained that Croon, a disbarred lawyer, held a soldier's license and could operate free.

Moore wasn't so fortunate, he said, and he agreed with Croon to the "faked" paper.

Croon, however, said that he knew nothing of the faked deal—that he bought the business outright from Moore. Differences developed when it was discovered that the business—of that purchasing salaries and wages—had earned a profit of $4,000 since Moore left.

Moore said he had been paid a large sum toward retirement of $8,500 in notes.

Judges heard all the evidence today, but did not pass on the case—a petition for injunction to restrain Moore from further operation.

Moore said he had been in the business overnight to agree, if they can, and if not, he will pass an order tomorrow. A jury later will hear the case.

McGrath was admitted to the Macon hospital suffering from shock and bruises about the body. Although he remained in a dazed condition some time after regaining consciousness, physicians said that he was not seriously injured.

Mrs. Edna Gilman, who was riding in the car with Mr. Traver, received a number of bruises but Mr. Traver was uninjured. Both cars were severely damaged. Spectators said that Mr. McGrath came into Broadway according to police reports.

'Bad Boy' Problems Invited by Georgia Univ. Department

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 30.—(AP)—If Johnny or Willie is "cutting up something awful" and providing the neighborhood with plenty of scandal, parents should not give up hope but call on the psychological department of the University of Georgia, Dr. A. S. Edwards, head of the department, has announced.

The university this year will establish a clinic for children who cause worry to parents and teachers and hopes, through psychological, psychiatric, neurological, sociological and medical examinations, to make Johnny a better boy.

There is always a cause for misbehavior in children, Dr. Edwards said, and if honest efforts are made to find the cause and corrective measures taken then child and parent can be made happier.

Dr. Edwards said heredity and environment go hand-in-hand in determining how a person will turn out and while nothing can be done about a child's heredity, his environment can be improved. In many instances a child's home life is responsible for his misbehavior, sometimes wrong playmates are responsible and often the wrong attitude of parents toward the child will result in the child's behavior. All these can be corrected, Dr. Edwards said.

Two problems will receive the attention of the clinic, a scientific study of the normal and abnormal and the giving of practical assistance in cases of misbehavior difficulties.

M. & O. Stockholders Ask Court To Dissolve Merger

Allege Southern Uses Dividends for Own Stock and Discriminates Against Mobile Port.

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Sensational allegations of discrimination against the port of Mobile, involving the Southern Railway Company, Mobile & Ohio railroad, the City Bank-Farmers Company, a New York corporation, are contained in bills in equity which were filed late this afternoon by a local law firm in behalf of John J. Neff and Irving Schlesinger, both of New York city and stockholders of the Mobile & Ohio before consolidation with the Southern.

The bill is another chapter in the fight which has been made for some time to separate the Mobile & Ohio from the Southern. There is now pending a petition for separation before the interstate commerce commission. It was filed for the city of Mobile, which claims that the Mobile & Ohio was organized primarily as a Mobile carrier for advancement of the interests of the port and city and that the Southern has not acted in accordance with agreements made when it took over the Mobile & Ohio.

Flagrant violations of the agreements have been alleged. It has been charged that the Southern, holding majority stock in the Mobile & Ohio, compels the latter line to work for advancement of the port of New Orleans.

The bill, as filed here, asks the court to require an accounting of financial matters from the Southern and Mobile & Ohio, as well as the former Farmers' Loan & Trust Company of New York, which is alleged to have broken its contract and "violated its trust" in the surrender of powers of attorney to the Southern, which is alleged to be voting dividends from earnings of the Mobile & Ohio. A plea that the Farmers' Loan & Trust Company be enjoined from voting the stock of the Mobile & Ohio is made. The stockholders would also enjoin the Mobile & Ohio from counting any of the stock as voted by the banking institution. Selection of new trustees is asked. The court is asked to declare void the arrangement whereby the Southern acquired control of the Mobile & Ohio and that the Southern be enjoined from voting any stock of the Mobile & Ohio.

An accounting of the dividends received since consolidation with the Mobile & Ohio, and refunding of one-half of the total received, is asked by both Neff and Schlesinger in separate bills.

Retirement of the debentures with funds received by the Southern is asked by the stockholders. Surrender of certificates of stock of the Mobile & Ohio, held by the Guaranty Trust Company, is also asked by petitioners. A claim for damages suffered by Mobile & Ohio stockholders is made against the Southern and the Farmers Company.

J. K. Jordan Spent $2,562 in Primary

James K. Jordan, defeated candidate in the recent primary for judge of Fulton superior court, spent $2,562.55 in his campaign against Judge John D. Humphries, it was announced Tuesday. Jordan's statement said that the money was from his own personal funds, and was expended for an entrance fee of $500, clerical expenses, stationery, multigraphing, printing, advertising and assistants.

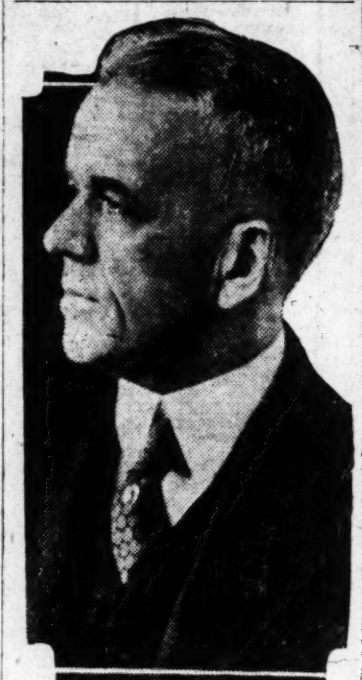

The primary expense account of William G. McTear, successful candidate for the legislature from Fulton county, revealed that he spent $711.85, including entrance fee of $100. The balance of the fund, furnished by personal friends, went for printing, advertising, radio time, etc.

Breach of Contract Charged Road Board

Charging that the state highway board made a breach of its contract by giving preference to another contractor for laying side railing on a Catoosa-Whitfield county project, T. W. Chandler, Virginia contractor, filed suit in United States court Tuesday against the board for $25,000. Chandler alleges this sum to be due him for construction work.

Dairy Specialist Comes to Atlanta

Announcement is made that C. C. Allison, who was formerly identified with one of the leading dairies in the country, has been appointed superintendent of Gaymont dairy on Briarcliff road.

Mr. Allison comes to Atlanta from Newburgh, N. Y., which is the center of milk production in New York state. He was superintendent there of Brookside dairy farm, which is considered one of the finest in that section.

Mr. Allison was graduated from the College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts at West Raleigh, N. C., and he has gained a wide reputation for keeping milk free from bacterial contamination.

Gaymont dairy was started 20 years ago by the late Captain Edward S. Gay as a hobby. After his death his eldest son, Ewell Gay, took over the project and now Mrs. Ewell Gay is manager. The herd consists of 60 purebred Jerseys and Holsteins.

THE HANDBOOK PICTURES.

The democratic and republican national committees have issued their handbooks for the pending campaign. In them they summarize the claims of the parties upon the suffrages of the people, who are to determine in November their temper toward future party control of the national government.

The laboring or, as the lawyers call it, is in the hands of the republicans, for they are in power and it is their record that is pitted against the principles and policies urged in substitution by the democrats.

Two years ago the republicans led by Hoover made the most rosy promises to the people and persuaded them to perpetuate republican rule. Since then those promises have expired and become a long procession of Banquo ghosts haunting the tents of the republican chief and his leaders. The farmers and the workers of the nation have found republican pledges turned to Dead Sea ashes on their lips. Prosperity has languished with locomotive ataxia. Farm parity is a ghastly joke. Labor unemployment is a widespread anemia. The republican picture of 1928 is a dismal fade-out.

It is not difficult for the democratic handbook to keep those facts vividly before the eyes of all who read, but it will be doubly difficult for the republican Heberts and Hatfields to hide them from the mass of the people who are painfully pinched by the republican duncanism that covers the country. Five weeks more will tell the tale of whether the republicans are political magicians who can fool most of the people all the time.

THE GOING OF DR. SHELTON.

The appointment of Dr. William A. Shelton, of the Emory University faculty, to be pastor of the representative church of Southern Methodism at the national capital, Washington city, will take from the religious, educational and civic life of Atlanta one of its most useful and distinguished figures.

Dr. Shelton is a notable combination of theologian, savant and scientist. His rich culture, skill of research and powers of mental craftsmanship fit him for so high a post of influence in the city which is the American focus of native and foreign intelligence applied to great problems of morality, sociology and both national and international correlations.

The church of which he is so bright a lumina is wise in this new placement of his powers and influence. The particular church to which he goes for service has become, under the leadership of such stalwart ministers as Chappell and Lambeth a spiritual dynamic center in the national capital, manned by some of the most distinguished men in the public service.

Atlantans will regret to part with Dr. Shelton, but their good wishes will accompany him in large volume to his new field and they will be happy to hear of the spiritual achievements that will come to him in that larger arena of Christian endeavor.

The revealed attempt of the republican senatorial campaign committee to submarine Senator Norris in Nebraska isn't likely to get three cheers out in that region.

Bobby, my mitt you, because you are uniquely IT, and all the world now knows IT!

ROOSEVELT'S FUTURE.

The renomination of Franklin Roosevelt and the general belief that he will certainly be re-elected in November accentuates his status as the prospective nominee of the democratic party for the presidency in 1932. No other name ranks with his in discussions of that event.

Governor Roosevelt in his less than two years as chief executive of the most important state of the Union has written a record of able and progressive statesmanship. It requires more general intelligence, sagacity and skill of direction to govern New York state satisfactorily than is demanded of most of the monarchs of the world. The state's population is larger and more heterogeneous than that of many kingdoms and republics of Europe; its active tangible wealth greater, its economic interests more diversified, and its political complexion more spotted than a leopard's skin.

That the people of New York state had a great confidence in the justice, integrity and courage of Franklin Roosevelt was evidenced by their choice of him for governor two years ago in the same voting by which they rejected the presidential candidacy of Alfred E. Smith, then governor and one of the most popular executives the state has ever had.

How far the re-election of Governor Roosevelt may operate to make him the democratic favorite in 1932 is yet to be realized, but it is certain that other than his personal and statecraft traits will win the party's supreme approval. Immediate expediency may cause the party judgment to veer to another, but always the man and his high services will command the respect and praise of his fellow democrats throughout the nation.

NEED OF TAX REFORMS.

The cost of keeping a modern city up to date and on the march grows steadily as new necessities arise with increasing demands of the citizens for municipal services. Government is organized and paid for as a general servant of the people and any government that fails to render full service for full pay is a burden and a nuisance.

New York city grows constantly in population, wealth and attractiveness to all America and the world at large. The city budget for 1931 is figured to run between $630,000,000 and $635,000,000, or more than half the assessed property values on which all the people of Georgia pay taxes to the state. But New York city has twice the population of Georgia and such taxable wealth as to make the property tax rate $2.53 per $100.

It costs a person more to own property in most of the counties of Georgia than if he owned it in New York city. And the New Yorker gets vastly more benefits and services for his taxes than any Georgian gets for his payments to the state, county and city.

As was pointed out in these columns a few days ago, one of the average good counties of the state has a property tax rate, excluding the state 5-mill ad valorem, of $3.15 per $100, and still is not a self-supporting county. Other smaller and weaker counties have yet larger levies—more, in fact, upon $1,000 of property than the interest from a $1,000 government bond would pay.

Surely, with facts like these sticking in the public craw, the time is overdue for a complete overhauling of the Georgia tax system and the equalization of its growing burdens and injustices.

New England is showing symptoms of going democratic in November in spite of Hoover-Grundylism.

Secretary Wilbur warily protests that he is not "another Fall guy" in the oil-odorous interior department.

Some of the things the Russian reads do in this country are intensely yellow. We ought to treat them to ultramarine blue by deportation.

Some of the fall hats for women look more like rubber thumb-stalls than ever.

Jim Reed in the vice president's chair would look like Lindbergh tied to a post.

Those South American political upheavals are convulsions rather than revolutions.

Clarence Darrow seems to be right in claiming that Chicago's busy-gangsters are not vagrants.

President Hoover will "swing around the circle" but will scarcely square it with his four speeches.

The Mexicans are pained to see Dwight Morrow leave their country—and so are the American dregs.

Can you imagine a Rio Rita movie jarrred up by a church organ?

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Joy of Timidity.

A consolation for the nervous and for those who blush nervously is offered by a French scientist, Dr. Voivenel, who said recently in a lecture that in general timid people, who are generally very intelligent, have joys of their own. Not being able, through fear, to express some one's feelings, to exteriorize their feelings, the timid create within themselves a world of which they are the heroes. Their intellectual life is intense and they dream magnificent waking dreams full of adventure, of romance and heroism. Dr. Voivenel tells us also that the happiest women are those sensible enough to stay timid, those who blush naturally. Men unconsciously seek them. Darwin has noted that in the eastern slave markets, the young girls who blush bring the highest prices. This was the origin of cosmetics; our painted ladies of today are only women, who without knowing it, try to give pleasure by buying their modesty in sticks. There are thus certain satisfactions in being timid. When the timid lament their infirmity without stating the other side, they are like many others who are complaining about something or other without ever recognizing that after all there are compensations.

End Balkan Feuds.

The inter-Balkan conference, which will be held at Athens, October 6, is one happy result of a long-lasting crisis which has shaken the economic fabric of the Balkan states to its very foundations, says a London paper. A general aversion has, of necessity, been pushed into the background in favor of the more acute questions of production and co-operation. The World War there was a vast number of agricultural products of which Turkey, Greece and Bulgaria held a kind of monopoly, so that they were practically no competitors. But since overseas countries have also begun to put the same products on the world market, the necessity of producing has slowly gained ground. To these ends the inter-Balkan conference will endeavor to bridge the abyss formed by centuries of animosity. It will consider the means of extending intellectual exchanges, especially by way of Balkan institutes, university collaboration and by excluding sentiments of hatred from the teaching of history. In the meantime Turkey-Greek negotiations are going on. Their main object is the conclusion of a treaty of commerce and the limitation of armaments. A Greek delegation has already arrived in Turkey, and Mr. Venizelos is expected to pay a visit to Ankara by the end of October.

Rehabilitating Nero.

Arthur Weigall, the versatile historian, has attempted in a new book to change the old idea of Nero as one of the foulest blots upon the page of history, a scarcely human monster of hate and cruelty, and to substitute for that dreadful figure "a human and almost lovable character." Nero's latest history has produced a plea for his rehabilitation, of his mother, his personal client so eloquent and so well-supported as to constitute a human and historical document of singular value. The author, however, either of his own volition or of the publisher's, has passed unread, and such as perhaps no other historian now living could accomplish. It will certainly be remarked by the judicious reader that, while Mr. Weigall does all in his power to wipe from the figure of Nero many of the darker stains with which history has burdened him, he makes no effort to vindicate the memories of Nero's imperial predecessor, Caligula, of his mother, Julia Domna, or of his contemporary, Messalina. One cannot but ask why, if Nero, born into the same stratum of the same society, subjected to the same prodigies of criminality, subjected to the same horrible temptations of unlimited power which made them what they were, was really so different from them, he should have been the victim of the same obloquy which hangs about their names.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

IN HEALTH CONSERVATION ONLY A FEW OF US EVER GROW UP.

Without perpetrating a single statistic I may say that the death rate among babies is lower now than it ever before in America—unflattering though this will seem to the parents of the nation, it is a better chance to thrive and flower than did the hectic youth of yesterday, but along with these pleasant facts grows another which should make grown men and women feel ashamed of themselves: Death now takes a greater toll than ever before among men and women who are in their prime, 35 years and onward not to say downward.

At first blush it seems strange, and we are inclined to question the accuracy of the records, when we find that although infants and children have an increasing expectancy of life, grown men and women have a decreasing expectancy of life. Well, there is nothing strange about it and you may as well have another spiritual while we explain the apparent inconsistency. In infancy and childhood and early youth the control of hygiene and the personal habits of the individual are more or less in the hands of our guardians, parents, teachers, doctors, public health authorities. From the age of 20 or thereabouts the determination of our own hygiene standards or ways of living, and from this period of life onward we are largely our own health mentors. We are nearly all wiseacres, too, and like the typical ignoramus, we assume we know such things as cancer, tuberculosis, heart disease, diabetes, arteriosclerosis, my heart, my liver or my lungs, or even such things as my back, and you'll see me hot-footing it to a really good doctor for advice about the matter, yes, and carrying out the doctor's advice as faithfully as I can.

Well, folks, grownup folks, I mean, there's the point of this little chat, and this is the proper place to call to mind that some grownup folks do not understand unless we check and double-check every statement, to wit:

Three-fourths of all deaths in the United States after the age of 35 years are due to the following eight causes: (1) Tuberculosis, (2) heart disease, (3) cancer, (4) diabetes, (5) cerebral hemorrhage (otherwise known as apoplexy or stroke of paralysis), (6) pneumonia, (7) nephritis, (8) accidents.

I ask the older boys and girls, if any boy or girl had the idea that he or she had high blood pressure or arteriosclerosis is absent from the list. How come, we'll explain another day.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

The Infernal Spirit That Robs the Law and Disgraces the State.

In the 58 years that I have been a newspaperman I have seen five men lynched by mob. In one case, I saw two of them hung together from the same tree, and a giant live oak tree.

One of the five was a negro murderer, who was hung from a lamp-post on the public square at Nashville, the capital of Tennessee, in front of the police station, and all his men at immediate hand fighting like wildcats to penetrate the mob and rescue the victim. Talk about "wild beasts of the field"—they are not in it at all with one of those troops of infuriated men, forgetting all training, all law, all civilization and fired with the blood-lust of vengeance!

A Strange Cycle of Passion.
In this America of ours, where lynching seems more indigenous than in any other so-called civilized land, the psychology that urges it to seem to have its cycles. It flames and fades by seasons, as it were, for there are in localities long seasons when there are no mob demonstrations, and then it will ensue a period when almost any major crime set up a mob to "lynch him, hang him, burn him!" The south, since the long-ago interstates war, has been peculiarly the field in which the lynching spirit has been most prevalent and popular. I say "popular" because there have been so few cases of lynchings being detected, successfully prosecuted and punished for their murders. Our record in that line of law and justice is one of the most shameful to be found among professedly Christian mankind.

Mob Murders Flow and Ebb.
Looking over the record back to 1885 one finds that up to this year we have had 4,291 reported lynchings. That is more than 97 a year and more than 8 per month. The highest annual number was in 1892 when 255 were lynched and the lowest number in a year was 1928 when only 9 were recorded. This year the lynching spirit seems to be once more flaming over the country, especially in our southland, and already we are adding up a record bloodier than for a decade past. In 1929 we had 124 white persons and 43 negroes, a total of 167. Missing was our nearest rival, she having lynched 26 whites and 416 negroes, a total of 442.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 30.—Ramon Novarro is so busy directing these days that he would seem to have lost the identity of a great star and matinee idol—indeed he ever exhibited any of these well-known characteristics. So trenchant and inspiring has this young Latin's direction been that the company is allowing him to make a picture of his own, "The Sign of the Cross," which he has already done in Spanish. And Novarro himself frankly tells me that he had his way in the picture more than content to remain a director for the rest of his life and never step before the cameras again. "I find," he says, "that when I once I had the creation of merely a role in the picture, as a director I have the creation of all the roles. I find the satisfaction of directing and mounting a story far greater than the delight in creating a plausible and likeable character in someone else's picture."

At the present time, Novarro is both acting leads and directing. This is not unusual in Hollywood, but is most unusual in the type star Ramon. He has been directing since he was 18, and has been so successful that double work successfully. Lowell Sherman has already accomplished the feat with honors. And Lionel Barrymore did it when he mounted a story far greater than the delight in creating a plausible and likeable character in someone else's picture.

But it seems scarcely in the picture that a star of his own caliber and pulchritude of Novarro who is a superb actor as well, would ever be allowed to retire from the acting angle of his work while that box-office pull remained. Novarro will soon begin work on a story, adapted from Dr. Arthur Hays Sulzberger's "Days of Wrath," by music by Oscar Strauss. This should be one of the most beautiful scores and books to come out of Hollywood.

When Roland Young played a scene the other day which called for a close shot wherein a fly crawled slowly along the nose of his character, he said, "I find, I had opportunity to find out how some of the tricks of movies are done."

Ten flies were put on ice the night before. Literally put on ice. Then when the shot was to be made, cameras and lights were adjusted for the close-up. Now the heat of the modern studio lights is tremendous and the fly who is half frozen from a night that would make Eliza turn pale.

Six tries were made before a fly of sufficient temper was found to be in the chills in the chilly group. But the sixth victim responded to the play beautifully. He moved sluggishly along Rolando's cheek. Then, feeling the heat of the lights, he gained momentum, paused a moment to flick his wings airily and then took off, into the air, with perfect form.

"Well," said J. "That's an experience for a fly."

"I suppose he's off," said Young. "To join a group of his cronies and say, 'I'm simply dead to work, working all morning at the studio. I'll let you know when my picture is prepared!'"

Dolores Del Rio's illness is giving the colony genuine cause for concern. Since the death of her husband, she has been continually and but little help to work out for her immediate return to work.

Another beauty who has been giving her friends some considerable worry is Doris Sills (Doris Kenyon) who has been completely prostrated by the death of her husband. Her concert engagement in Los Angeles has had to be cancelled and friends and relatives are trying to get her off to Europe.

Possessed of a frail, blonde loveliness, Doris Kenyon has been one of the exquisite types as well as one of the best actresses in the local group. Her singing voice has received splendid commendation and she was scheduled to open a local concert course this fall.

And S. S.'s description of how most Hollywood encounters really go: "I don't know who you are, but who do you do, how do you do?"

An Embarrassing Moment

BY SAM W. SMALL

The Infernal Spirit That Robs the Law and Disgraces the State.

There were in that time lynchings in every state except the six in New England and New Jersey.

Who the Victims Happened to Be.
Of the 3,680 persons lynched between 1880 and 1928 the whites were 783 and the negroes were 2,897. Perhaps there is somebody living who is wise enough and honest enough to tell the world why nearly four times as many negroes should have been lynched than white men were for the same crimes—with the white criminals of the nation outnumbering the negro criminals by largely more than four to one?

All of those negroes but 110 were lynched in the southern states—our toll here was 2,787.

These are figures that deserve to be most seriously studied by Christian men, by public officers, legislators, judges, and the care and administration of the laws of life, liberty and property in their sworn keeping. There is much that is rotten in a civilization with that record.

The Hinge of the Whole Matter.

The God's truth is that among the ignorant and low-bred class of whites throughout the south there is a constant and bitter hatred of the negro.

There was a great leaven of it among us long before the negroes were brought here and it was mutual between the well-kept, well-fed blacks on the plantations and home-lands and the "po" white trash, shiftless and thriftless on the outside.

But in those days the negro-hating whites did not dare lay hands upon the big white man's "nigger," and the negro felt the security and pride of that immunity.

The freeing of the negroes at the end of the War Between the States sunk that immunity and the enmity between the two classes became open. It has largely continued until now and is not likely to be soon entirely quenched by preachments from the pulpit or sermons from the judicial bench.

What the Cure Must Be.

There will be no ending finally of this horrible spirit of lynching lawlessness until our communities are permeated with a stronger and deeper respect for the sacredness of life and law.

Whatever security for life is needed can be afforded by righteous and bravely enforced law. It is the right of a sovereign state to demand to death and execute the penalty.

A mob breaking a law, or overpowering officers of the law, to wreak its vengeance upon a helpless prisoner, however vile and bloody, is a big consolidated coward of which every member is an equally cowardly atom.

Of the five men whom I have seen lynched all were safely in the hands of the law until the mob overrode the law and committed murder upon them. When Georgia shall have executed a few more lynchings she will begin to feel herself better civilized.

"It's a far worse thing for an American to sell American stocks short than for the Soviet government to sell wheat short on the Chicago pit," was the cryptic comment of Rudolph Spreckels, American financier.

Mr. Spreckels thinks the primary reason for bad economic conditions now is largely due to "bear operations on the stock exchange."

He analyzes the situation in this fashion: During the stock market boom, everyone was talking stocks and many buying time. When the crash brought disaster to rich and poor alike, few found themselves left with idle funds.

"As a result, the bears can depress almost any stock exchange security by offering large blocks of stock without fear of being unable to cover their sales at lower prices," says Mr. Spreckels.

"Unfortunately, the public still looks upon stock quotations as an index of the condition of business. Consequently, every time there is a dip in the market quotations, people become convinced that bad times are a head and strict economy is the order of the day. Decreased buying means curtailment of production and reduced production means more men and women deprived of employment and their buying power is destroyed."

"It is a vicious circle and those primarily responsible for these conditions, in my opinion, are the bear operators on the stock exchange. It is estimated that about 5,000,000 shares of stock have been borrowed by the shorts to deliver against the market. The sale of stock which the shorts do not own, in the absence of public buying, tends to depress the market. Prices almost at will and make huge profits, while destroying public confidence and thereby undermining our industrial and general business."

"What is your remedy?" I asked. "I believe that if congress enacted a law making it illegal, for a period not longer than one year, to sell securities not actually owned by the seller, security values would be stabilized, public confidence restored, and increased demand for commodities would restore production to normal and within a reasonably short time unemployment would be a thing of the past."

Mr. Spreckels suggests this as emergency legislation only.

John J. Haskob, financier and chairman of the democratic national committee is opposed to the Spreckels idea.

"I never sell stocks short, so I have no real interest in the matter," he real feeling is, however, that if the public in good times and bad could be taught to sell stocks short and become expert in this as they are in buying stocks long, the tendency would be to keep stock prices from mounting too high as well as from going too low, for the reason that if there were a great short interest in the market with prices high, this short interest would supply a very definite buy-back when the market started falling, because people short of stocks would be purchasing on a scale on the way down in order to definitely establish their profits, thus making the decline more orderly and less severe."

I asked him to make this point more specific.

"When you think of it, there is really no more reason for selling 100 shares of Steel common, which you have, than there is for selling 100 shares which you have not, if you think the price is higher at the time of the sale than it is likely to be at some time in the future."

Rudolph Spreckels Says Americans Who Sell American Stocks Short Are Far Worse Than Russians Who Sell Wheat Short in America—Believes Law, for Year, Should Stop Sales of Unowned Stocks.

Rudolph Spreckels Says Americans Who Sell American Stocks Short Are Far Worse Than Russians Who Sell Wheat Short in America—Believes Law, for Year, Should Stop Sales of Unowned Stocks.

"It's a far worse thing for an American to sell American stocks short than for the Soviet government to sell wheat short on the Chicago pit," was the cryptic comment of Rudolph Spreckels, American financier.

Mr. Spreckels thinks the primary reason for bad economic conditions now is largely due to "bear operations on the stock exchange."

He analyzes the situation in this fashion: During the stock market boom, everyone was talking stocks and many buying time. When the crash brought disaster to rich and poor alike, few found themselves left with idle funds.

"As a result, the bears can depress almost any stock exchange security by offering large blocks of stock without fear of being unable to cover their sales at lower prices," says Mr. Spreckels.

"Unfortunately, the public still looks upon stock quotations as an index of the condition of business. Consequently, every time there is a dip in the market quotations, people become convinced that bad times are a head and strict economy is the order of the day. Decreased buying means curtailment of production and reduced production means more men and women deprived of employment and their buying power is destroyed."

"It is a vicious circle and those primarily responsible for these conditions, in my opinion, are the bear operators on the stock exchange. It is estimated that about 5,000,000 shares of stock have been borrowed by the shorts to deliver against the market. The sale of stock which the shorts do not own, in the absence of public buying, tends to depress the market. Prices almost at will and make huge profits, while destroying public confidence and thereby undermining our industrial and general business."

"What is your remedy?" I asked. "I believe that if congress enacted a law making it illegal, for a period not longer than one year, to sell securities not actually owned by the seller, security values would be stabilized, public confidence restored, and increased demand for commodities would restore production to normal and within a reasonably short time unemployment would be a thing of the past."

Light Fulton-DeKalb Vote For Governor Indicated

Polling Places for Run-over Primary in Borough and Counties Are Announced for Today.

Voters in Fulton and DeKalb counties will join the march of the Georgia electorate to the polls today to select the state's next governor, who will be sworn into office in June when the general assembly meets in biennial session.

Two names only will be on the ballot, that of George H. Carswell, secretary of state and Richard B. Russell, Jr., speaker of the house of representatives. Russell, by leading the list of five candidates in the September 10 state primary, and Carswell by running second, neither candidate obtaining a majority over the field, forced the run-over primary to be decided today.

Football weather, fair and cool, is forecast for today by the weather man. Little indication of a large vote has been seen by political prognosticators.

Polls in Wards.

There will be but one polling place in each of the wards in the borough of Atlanta within Fulton county. The ninth and eleventh wards, which lie partly in DeKalb county, also will have polling places in that county, and the voters of the twelfth ward entirely within DeKalb county, all will vote in that county.

In the September 10 primary, more than 14,000 votes were cast in the county, while more than 5,000 voted in DeKalb county. Both counties were carried by Russell, with Carswell in fourth place in both counties, John N. Holder being second and instructions to workers, and a final check-up was being made in the various counties to insure the accuracy of all the polling places. Last indications were that no trouble would develop on this score, although early last week G. E. Maddox, chairman of the state democratic committee, asked for volunteer election officials, as no money exists in the party treasury for their payment.

Ed Rivers third. Perry was last in both counties.

RUSSELL, CARSWELL CLOSE CAMPAIGNS

Time for opening the polls, as in the first primary, again will be governed by rules of the democratic state committee, which leaves such details to the committees of the respective counties. As only the two men are running, and as interest is aroused, it is expected the winner will be known by early evening, however, a light vote is anticipated.

The run-over was made necessary when none of the five candidates for governor in the first primary secured a majority of the county unit votes, necessary for nomination under the Georgia system. There are 414 such counties, each county being accorded two unit votes per representative in the lower house, and 208 are necessary for nomination. Russell, while lacking a majority of these votes polled 63,862 popular votes and carried 49 counties with 132 unit votes to lead the ticket. Carswell was second with 56,627 popular votes, 47 counties and 128 unit votes. Thus the two high men entered the run-over.

E. D. Rivers, who was eliminated in the first primary along with John N. Holder and James A. Perry, received 52,738 popular votes and carried 38 counties with 88 unit votes. Holders had 49,561 popular votes, 27 counties and 68 unit votes, while Perry had 8,535 popular votes and no unit votes.

Rivers-Carswell Drive.

One of the first developments of the run-over was announcement of an affiliation between Rivers and Carswell, and Rivers has spoken throughout the south Georgia territory, his strong hold, since that time. Russell attacked this affiliation, terming it a "midnight trade," which he said would work no good to the state, and in counter-attack the Rivers-Carswell forces contended that Russell was supported by Holders, although not in the open. Holders' only comment during the run-over has been that he reserved the right to cast his vote according to his conscience, and that he hoped his followers would do likewise. Perry has made no statement relative to his support.

Carswell's debt payment plan, which involves diversion of some $5,000,000 from the state highway fund to the general fund for payment of debts, has been vigorously attacked by Russell as being illegal, and a plan which would seriously interfere with the road paving program. Carswell in reply has contended that Russell had no plan for paying the debts.

Russell has based his campaign chiefly against the "factionalism" which he says governs Georgia at the present time.

Much of the run-over campaign has been conducted in south Georgia, where the Carswell forces look to the counties carried by Rivers as the balance of power in the election.

While Carswell brought his campaign for governor to a close in Columbus, Judge R. N. Hardeman, his campaign manager, was speaking in Atlanta, and E. D. Rivers issued a final statement here.

Judge Hardeman reviewed the Carswell platform, declaring his candidate had remained consistent, "and as the curtain falls, we stand just where we stood in the beginning."

Hardeman also charged that Richard B. Russell, opponent of Carswell, had evaded issues, and has declined to take a definite stand on the issues at stake.

Rivers, in his statement, again explained why he decided to affiliate with the Carswell camp, placing it upon "certain principles upon which both of us agreed. There has been no effort on my part to deliver my friends who supported me in the first primary, however, he said, although he has appealed to them upon a basis of principles to give such support.

Russell predicted a sweeping victory "for the people" today in his race against Carswell, in a statement Tuesday night which closed his campaign. He urged every voter to visit the polls and cast a ballot.

Claudel Returns.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP)—M. Paul Claudel, French ambassador to the United States, returned today on the Ile de France to resume his duties in Washington after a five-month absence abroad. He made a trip to Berlin to attend the presentation of his opera, "Christophers Columbus," which he said was well received.

W. C. T. U. Riot Quelled By Colorado Police

LONGMONT, Col., Sept. 30.—(AP)—By virtue of police aid, peace reigned tonight at the annual convention of the Colorado Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The lull followed efforts of insurgents to unseat Mrs. Adrianna Hungerford as president at a stormy session. Police were called to quiet. Those close to the situation, however, predicted a renewal of hostilities tomorrow.

The storm broke today when Mrs. Hungerford announced an executive session would be held. She demanded that the room be cleared of all but accredited delegates.

The insurgents who proposed Mrs. F. J. Smith of Denver, to succeed Mrs. Hungerford, refused to leave until the report of an official board was made public. The report was said to have dealt with the case of five insurgents ousted from the W. C. T. U. last winter after they made charges that Cottage Home, a refuge for organization conduct for unwed mothers, was mismanaged.

When the insurgents refused to leave today someone called police and the officers finally ejected the protestors.

What transpired at the closed meeting was not made public.

Arkansas' Aridity Suits Scott McBride

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, today expressed himself as "well pleased" with the prohibition situation in Arkansas, in the east and even in Chicago, where he once directed the league's activities in Illinois.

Dr. McBride, here to confer with the state organization of the Anti-Saloon League, was not at all ruffled by the forensic furore raging over the issue in eastern wet strongholds but admitted that "we have been a bit overconfident."

"Prohibition is firmly entrenched," the prohibition leader said and dismissed as "unimportant" the "slight gains made by the wets" in congress in the fall campaign.

"The next session will be as dry as it ever was and there will be no more than 10 supporters lost at the most in the house."

Woman Off to Swim Channel to France

DOVER, Eng., Sept. 30.—(UN)—Mrs. Mercedes Gleitz Carey, well-known as a long distance swimmer, entered the sea at 8:47 p. m. today in an attempt to be the first woman to swim from England to France across the English channel.

Her husband accompanied her in a motor boat. The weather was fine but a northerly breeze ruffled the chilly channel currents.

WILBUR TAKES ACTION IN OIL FRAUD CHARGE

Asks Justice Department To Probe Alleged Colorado Irregularities.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Secretary Wilbur today asked the justice department to investigate the charges of Ralph Kelley, of the general land office at Denver, that efforts were being made by oil companies to acquire oil shale lands in Colorado illegally.

"This department," Wilbur said, "does not propose to rest on the charges of misfeasance in connection with the administration public lands. I may repeat that the statements he (Mr. Kelley) made public did not refer to oil lands but to oil shale lands; that no single lease or permit has been issued by this administration to any individual, company or corporation on these lands, that being in compliance with an executive order of the president at the start of this administration."

Secretary Wilbur said he expected the justice department to inquire into Kelley's statements and that it would give full opportunity to establish any charges. He added the department would seek explanation of the "origin of these reckless and false statements."

At the same time Chairman Nye of the senate lands committee wrote to Kelley, asking him for the facts on which he based his charges.

Kelley could not be reached today by Nye.

As chairman of the lands committee, Nye made an exhaustive investigation into similar charges involving leases of the Salt Creek oil fields in Wyoming several years ago.

"My interest in this matter," Senator Nye wrote to Kelley, "is prompted by the contact which I had with the investigations of the so-called oil scandals in Wyoming. While those investigations have been closed, I am, nevertheless, interested in following the administration of the public domain in so far as it relates to our resources of oil and will have genuine interest in any facts which you may afford relative to the administration of this domain which is not in keeping with the letter and spirit of the law."

Senator Nye told Kelley he had read his charges "with some amazement" and he expressed surprise at them. "Because of the confidence which I have had that the present administration of the public domain was doing all that possibly could be done to insure divorcement from those influences which have looted the public domain in times past."

Nye explained that he could make

Cotton at 15 Cents Per Pound Accepted From Farmers By Southern Business College

The Sons and Daughters of Farmers Can Now Attend Business School

"All aboard for the Southern Business College," is the special message being sent out today to farmers who want to send their sons and daughters to the Southern for its thorough and practical business training, but have been unable to do so because of the low price of cotton.

"Send them along now, and pay for the tuition in middling cotton at fifteen cents per pound," says this live and up-to-date business school, "and we will hold the cotton until it goes up to fifteen cents or above."

"That's the way to boost good times," said a business man to Mr. Arnold, president of the Southern Business College, when he learned that his school is taking the initiative in stabilizing this important product of the farm by giving the farmer a fair price for his cotton in accepting it in payment of tuition.

Some time ago the Southern paid the farmers 18 cents for cotton when the market price was only 12 cents and the school held it until it went to 20 cents per pound.

Follow in line, merchants, manufacturers, and others who have things to sell that the farmer needs and wants. Let's bring back prosperity—it's already on the way, but we need enthusiasm, push and action to help.

Only those farmers who raise their own cotton are eligible to this special proposition.

Don't delay, farmers, send your sons and daughters on to the Southern now and pay tuition in cotton at 15 cents per pound. Many farmers, not dependent upon cotton, have already enrolled their boys and girls. Over 400 students are now in attendance

THE GUMPS—'T WAS NOT TO BE

The MURDER at the VICARAGE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

INSTALLMENT VII.

I had a hurried lunch and went out to do some visits. Griselda had gone to London by the cheap Thursday train.

I came in about a quarter to four with the intention of sketching the outline of my Sunday sermon, but Mary told me that Mr. Redding was waiting for me in the study.

I found him pacing up and down with a worried face. He looked white and haggard.

"He turned abruptly at my entrance. 'Look here, sir. I've been thinking over what you said yesterday. I've had a sleepless night thinking about it. You're right. I've got to cut and run.'

"My dear boy," I said. "You were right in what you said about Anne. I'll bring trouble on her by staying here. She's—she's too good for anything else. I see I've got to go. I've made things hard enough for her as it is. Heaven help me."

"I think you have made the only decision possible," I said. "I know that it is a hard one, but believe me it will be the best in the end."

I could see that he thought that that was the kind of thing easily said by some one who didn't know what he was talking about.

"You'll look after Anne? She needs a friend."

"You can rest assured that I will do everything in my power."

"Thank you, sir," he wrung my hand. "You're a good sort, padre. I shall see her to say good-by this evening, and I shall probably pack up and go tomorrow. No good prolonging the agony. Thanks for letting me have the shed to paint in. I'm sorry not to have finished Mrs. Clement's portrait."

"Don't worry about that, my dear boy. Good-by and God bless you."

When he had gone I tried to settle down to my sermon, but with very poor success. I kept thinking of Lawrence and Anne Protheroe.

I had rather an unpalatable cup of tea, cold and black, and at half-past five the telephone rang. I was informed that Mr. Abbott, of Lower Farm, was dying and would I please come at once.

I rang up Old Hall immediately, for Lower Farm was nearly two miles away and I could not possibly get back by six-fifteen. I have never succeeded in learning to ride a bicycle.

I was told, however, that Colonel Protheroe had just started out in the car, so I departed, leaving word with Mary that I had been called away but would try to be back by six-thirty or soon after.

It was nearer seven than half-past six when I approached the vicarage gate on my return. Before I reached it, it swung open and Lawrence Redding came out. He stopped dead on seeing me and I was immediately struck by his appearance. He looked like a man who was on the point of going mad. His eyes started in a peculiar manner, he was deathly white, and he was shaking and twitching all over.

I wondered for a moment whether he could have been drinking, but he repudiated the idea immediately.

"Hullo," I said, "have you been to see me again? Sorry I was out. Come back now. I've got to see Protheroe about some accounts, but I daresay we shan't be long."

"Protheroe," he said. He began to laugh. "Protheroe? He's going to see Protheroe? O, you'll see Protheroe all right. O, my God, yes!"

I stared. Instinctively I stretched out a hand towards him. He drew sharply aside.

"No," he almost cried out. "I've got to get away—to think. I've got to think. I must think."

He broke into a run and vanished rapidly down the road towards the village, leaving me staring after him, my first idea of drunkenness recurring.

Finally I shook my head and went on to the vicarage. The front door is always left open, but nevertheless I rang the bell. Mary came, wiping her hands on her apron.

"So you're back at last," she observed.

"Is Colonel Protheroe here? I asked."

"In the study. Been here since a quarter past six."

"And Mr. Redding's been here?"

Come a few minutes ago. Asked for you. I told him you'd be back any minute and that Colonel Protheroe was waiting in the study, and he said he'd wait too and went there. He's there now."

"No, he isn't," I said. "I've just met him going down the road."

"Well, I didn't hear him leave. He can't have stayed more than a couple of minutes. The mistress isn't back from town yet."

I nodded absently. Mary beat a retreat to the kitchen quarters and I went down the passage and opened the study door.

After the dusk of the passage the evening sunshine that was pouring into the room made my eyes blink.

I took a step or two across the floor and then stopped dead.

For a moment I could hardly take the meaning of the scene before me.

Colonel Protheroe was lying sprawled across my writing table in a horrible, unnatural position. There was a pool of some dark fluid on the desk by his head and he was slowly dripping with a horrible drip, drip, drip.

I pulled myself together and went across to him. His skin was cold to the touch. The hand that I raised fell back lifeless. The man was dead—shot through the head.

I went to the door and called Mary. When she came I ordered her to run as fast as she could and fetch Dr. Haydock, who lives just at the corner of the road. I told her there had been an accident.

Then I went back and closed the door to await the doctor's coming.

Fortunately Mary found him at home. Haydock is a good fellow, a big, fine, strapping fellow with an honest, rugged face.

His eyebrows went up when I pointed silently across the room. But like a true doctor he showed no signs of emotion. He bent over the dead man, examining him rapidly. Then he straightened himself and looked across at me.

"Well," I asked.

"He's dead, right enough—been dead half an hour, I should say."

"Suicide?"

"Out of the question, man. Look at the position of the wound. Besides, if he shot himself, where's the weapon?"

True enough, there was no sign of any such thing.

"We'd better not mess around with anything," said Haydock. "I'd better ring up the police."

The doctor picked up the receiver and spoke into it. He gave the facts as early as possible, and then replaced the telephone. He came across to where I was sitting.

"Is—it is murder?" I asked, rather faintly.

"Looks like it. Mean to say—what else can it be? Extraordinary business. Wonder who had a down on the poor old fellow. Of course, I know he wasn't popular, but one isn't often murdered for that reason—worse luck."

"There's one rather curious thing," I said. "I was telephoned for this afternoon to go to a dying parishioner. When I got there every one was very surprised to see me. The sick man was very much better than he had been for some days, and his wife flatly denied telephoning for me at all."

Haydock drew his brows together.

"That's suspicious, every. You were being got out of the way. Where's your wife?"

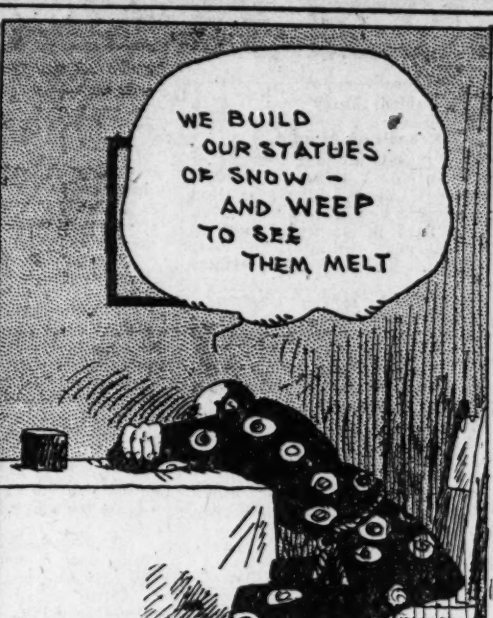

"Gone up to London for the day."

"In the kitchen—right at the other side of the house."

FORD GIVES $250,000 TO MUNICH MUSEUM

OBERAMMERGAU, Bavaria, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Henry Ford has contributed $250,000 to the Deutsches Museum at Munich, it was learned here today.

The manufacturer, one of whose hobbies is his own museum, has continued making purchases for his private collection while here. Yesterday he bought a quaint old wagon from a farm near Stuttgart.

He has posed for many snapshots, professional and amateur, and has given his autograph to almost all who have asked it.

12 CUBANS INJURED IN RIOT OF STUDENTS

Police Fire on Crowd Moving on Presidential Palace.

HAVANA, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Twelve police and students were wounded, three seriously, as a group of university youths staged an anti-government demonstration in the streets of Havana shortly before noon today.

Guns, machetes and sticks were used by the police in breaking up the demonstration after the students, numbering about 300, shouted threats against the administration and started for the presidential palace to demand the resignation of President Machado.

The shooting lasted 25 minutes. Casualties were evenly divided between the bluecoats and the students, reports indicated. One university professor was under arrest along with 41 students for alleged participation in the disturbance. He is Juan Marinero, head of the language department of the National University.

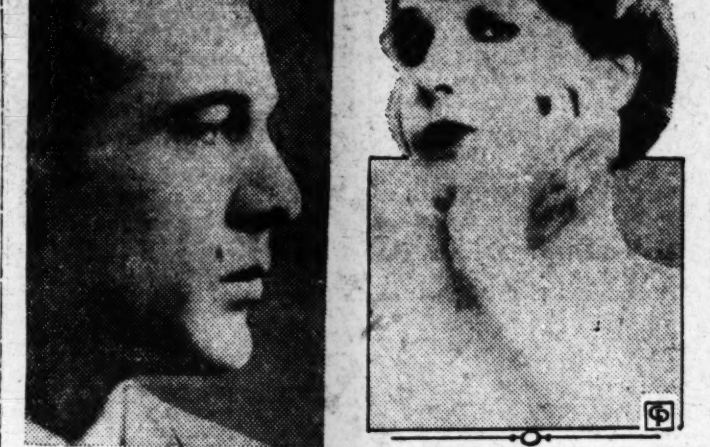

Rafael Trejo and Pablo de la Torre, students, received wounds which may cause their death. Of the police casualties, Officer De La Cruz Benitez was the most seriously wounded.

Reserves of mounted police were dispatched to the scene as soon as the demonstration opened. Streets leading to the latter were kept clear of traffic throughout the day. No statement regarding the occurrence was forthcoming from the government, but President Machado was known to have called a conference with Rafael Carrera, chief of police of Havana.

Dr. Ricardo Martinez Prieto, dean of the university, told the Associated Press he had "been aware that something was going to happen" and that he had "taken all possible means to avert any trouble."

Sierra Snowstorm Traps Quartet of Movie Stars

Lily Damita, Gary Cooper and 200 Others Marooned

GARY COOPER. LILY DAMITA.

SONORA (Sierra Mountain), Cal., Sept. 30.—(UN)—In a real mountain snowstorm, far different from a downfall of studio confetti, Lily Damita, Gary Cooper, Ernest Torrence, Tully Marshall and 200 other members of a Paramount film company were trapped tonight in the tiny village of Dardanelles, 55 miles north of here.

The company was on location in the mountain wilds near the small village when overtaken without warning last night by the first of seasonal snowstorms in the high Sierras. According to word reaching here, they barely had time to break camp and make for the village before the fall became of almost blinding proportions.

The company was billeted in the one hotel and various private dwellings. Deep drifts of snow surrounded the town. More than four feet already have fallen, it was reported, and the storm had scarcely diminished later.

A rescue party in charge of highway patrolmen and rangers left Sonora today in two heavy tractors, loaded with food, blankets and other supplies for the marooned movie outfit.

Old-timers were skeptical that even the tractors would be successful in the slippery toboggans that make up

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30.—(UN)—The Paramount-Public studio announced tonight that its company filming "Fighting Caravan" in the snow-covered region near Dardanelles would return to the studio tomorrow.

It was said a telephone call had been received from an official in charge of the unit on location. He informed studio executives he expected the company to have no trouble in emerging from the storm country with the aid of snow plows.

Grocer's Shelves 'Cleaned,' Police Stumped by Report

"VITLES" ARE PARTIALLY RECOVERED

BY WILLIAM O. KEY, JR. Not having heard of any plans for a local expedition into Patagonia or the polar regions, and not finding any public announcement of a picnic, fish fry, wedding or other shindig that might have explained a part of their subsequent dilemma away, the early morning watch at police headquarters Tuesday might be excused the skepticism with which they heard the following information over the phone from an excited grocer:

"This is C. W. Payne's grocery store at 292 Hunnicutt street."

"Well, come right out, will you? Burglars have broken in."

"Burglars, eh? Are they still in the store?"

"Of course not. They've gone. The officer at the police switchboard turns around and informs nearby call officers:

"This man here says burglars broke into his store, but they've gone now."

Two call officers who are next out look at each other and shrug. "Ask him what they stole," one suggests.

The man at the switchboard asks that question, and then looks incredulously at the call officer.

"He—the man here," he says, "claims they stole everything."

"No burglar can steal everything in a grocery store," one cop holds, logically; and the switchboard man imparts this observation to the man at the other end. Then he looks up at the call officer perplexedly:

"He says those burglars did," he informs them, "Maybe you'd better tell the captain."

Captain A. J. Holcombe is informed and he personally investigates.

Strangely enough, he finds that what the grocer complained of is true. A newsboy informs the officers he has observed three or more negroes in and about the grocery about 3 o'clock in the morning. Apparently they had hauled virtually every bit of the stock off an automobile, making several trips.

A few hours later a patrolman in another part of the city, nosing about a suspicious shack, found at least part of the loot of "vitles" stolen from the Payne grocery. Included in it was most of the meat taken.

THIRD PARTY FORMED BY NEW YORK DRYS

Robert P. Carroll, Native Georgian, Will Run Against Tuttle.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP)—A third party, launched by New York state drys for the avowed purpose of beating Charles W. Tuttle, was republican candidate for governor, was in the field today with Robert P. Carroll, Syracuse University professor, as its candidate.

Professor Carroll was reluctantly accepted as the new party's standard bearer at a meeting yesterday. After he had refused to withdraw and permit the substitution of another name on petitions which are being circulated, he would be a better "vote getter."

The dry organization has been named the law preservation party and has adopted an open law book as its emblem.

Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, president of the state Women's Christian Temperance Union, is one of the leaders in the movement.

"Our purpose is not to win with any party, but to win with an idea," she said today. "We propose to beat the republican leaders so badly that they never again will dare to nominate a wet candidate in this state."

She predicted the party would attract 500,000 voters.

Dr. Carroll has been an associate professor of education at the Teachers College at Syracuse. He was born in Ringgold, Ga., and is a graduate of Emory and Henry College, Emory.

His nominating petition will be filed next Monday, Mrs. Colvin said.

The meeting was attended by about a dozen dry leaders, representing the State Anti-Saloon League, the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the New York Civic League and the Greater New York Federation of Churches.

CARROLL FAMILY LIVES IN RINGGOLD.

RINGGOLD, Ga., Sept. 30.—Robert P. Carroll, one of the most prominent families in this section of the state, Robert P. Carroll received his early education in the schools of Ringgold, Ga., later going to various institutions of higher learning and finished at Syracuse University, where he is now a professor.

Mr. Carroll is an ordained Methodist minister and served through the World War as a chaplain with the American expeditionary forces. He is married and has three children.

His father, Dr. P. Carroll, is a Confederate veteran, serving throughout the War Between the States under General John B. Gordon. He served his country in the state legislature for several terms about 20 years ago and helped to write and pass the Georgia prohibition law. His mother was, before her marriage, a Miss Parish.

His father and the entire family have always been prohibitionists and democrats.

Countess Vera Weds Millionaire In London Office

LONDON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Verena, Countess of Cathcart, was married to Sir Rowland Hodge, 71-year-old millionaire stock owner at Prince's Row register office today.

Crowds gathered hours before the ceremony. The bridegroom arrived before the countess. The bride wore a black georgette and lace frock and a chiffon velvet coat trimmed with sable. Her hat was of the large "picture" type. She wore also a three-strand rope of pearls, one of the bridegroom's gifts.

The countess was greeted at the door of the register's office by her small son, the Earl of Cathcart and two sons of the bridegroom.

Among the guests were young son of the Duke of Richmond and Gordon, Lord Wyndham, and Sir James Heath.

The couple were to leave for Paris at once.

The Countess of Cathcart announced her impending marriage last Friday. This is her third matrimonial venture. The widow of Captain de Grey-Warner, killed in the great war, she was married under her maiden name of Vera Fraser to the fifth Earl of Cathcart in 1919. The aged earl divorced her in 1921, naming the Earl of Craven in the papers.

The countess was denied admission to the United States in 1928 on the ground of "moral turpitude." She later was admitted and produced a play written by herself, "Ashes of Love," which failed. When the Earl of Cathcart died in London in 1927 the countess inherited a trust fund giving her $2,500 a year.

Her 18-year-old son, Henry de Grey-Warner, was married secretly to an actress, Mayhewlowers Bean.

Mobile Drug Company Indicted in 'Jake' Sale

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 30.—(AP)—A distributing house and a number of south Alabama retailers were under federal indictment tonight on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law and the federal food and drug act in connection with the sale of a concoction labeled Jamaica ginger.

The indictments were returned against the Mobile Drug Company charged with distributing the concoction in south Alabama and more than a dozen retailers. Two of the retailers indicted were Robert Clay Larimore, of Marengo county, and Fred Vaughn, Five Hill, Clarke county, who voluntarily surrendered and were released under bond.

Judge Robert T. Ervin, deferred passing sentence in the case of Larimore and Vaughn until the next session of federal court in Selma.

The Mobile Drug Company as a firm and the proprietors, Hugo Eichold, Bernard H. Eichold and H. Eichold, were named in indictments. The three appeared in court and were released under bond.

The indictments followed an investigation by the grand jury a week ago in which more than forty persons alleged to have suffered paralysis of the lower limbs after drinking the concoction were questioned.

DAUGHTER OF 'CHANGE' PRESIDENT DIVORCED

RENO, Nev., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Harriet S. Coleman, daughter of E. H. S. Simmons, president of the New York Stock Exchange, was granted a divorce today from Shelton T. Coleman, New York broker, on grounds of mental cruelty. Custody of two minor children was awarded to Mrs. Coleman with $500 a month for their support. Alimony of $1,000 a month is provided for in an agreement made last June.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

IMPY GETS A SHAKING.

BY THORNTON BY BURGESS.

Even in the very midst of fright it sometimes pays to be polite.

—Old Mother Nature.

Up in a certain beech tree climbed great big Buster Bear. To a certain branch of this same beech tree clung Impy the Black Chipmunk. He hadn't moved, because he didn't dare move. Never in all his short life had he ever known quite such a fright. It was dreadful. Inside, he kept saying to himself, "He's coming for me! He's coming for me! Oh, dear, what shall I do? He's coming for me!"

And Impy really thought this was so. He knew nothing about Buster Bear. He didn't know that Buster didn't see him; he didn't know that

Buster Bear looked down and grinned. "Hello, Striped Chipmunk!" said he. "It's a long time since I've seen you. There is a young fellow up here in this tree who is all black and he says that you are his father."

"Well, what of it?" replied Striped Chipmunk again. "You know that Reddy Fox once had a black-coated son. Why shouldn't I have one?"

"This was too much for Buster to answer. (Copyright, 1930, by The Constitution.)

The next story: "Buster and Impy Become Friends."

It seemed to Impy that he couldn't hold on any longer.

Buster was fond of beechnuts. So it was quite natural for Impy to think that Buster was after him. He had been afraid when Buster was on the ground, but it hadn't entered his head that Buster could climb. Reddy Fox couldn't climb. Old Man Coyote couldn't climb. This fellow looked so big and clumsy, that climbing was the last thing he looked capable of. Impy couldn't believe his eyes.

At last Buster reached the branch that Impy was clinging to. Impy was quite at ease toward the end. Buster began to shake that branch. Impy clung on for dear life. Buster shook harder than ever. He was trying to shake some nuts from the tree, for even then he didn't see Impy. It seemed to Impy that he couldn't hold on any longer. He was just about to let go and drop and take his chances of getting eaten when Buster stopped shaking. You see, Impy had moved and the minute he moved Buster Bear saw him.

"Well, well, well!" said Buster Bear away down in his throat. His voice was grumbly-rumbly. "Well, well, well, who might you be?"

At first Impy couldn't find his tongue. Buster gave the branch another shake. "Tell me," he commanded, "who are you?"

"If you please," replied Impy in a frightened sounding voice, "I'm only a Chipmunk."

"Only a what?" cried Buster Bear. "Only a Chipmunk, if you please," replied Impy, trying very hard to be polite.

Buster Bear stared at him very hard. "If you are a Chipmunk," said he, "where did you get that coat?"

"Old Mother Nature gave it to me," said Impy.

"I don't believe it," said Buster.

X-Ray Expert To Lose Arm for Research

BALTIMORE, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Known to his associates as "the last of the old guard," along with Dr. Frederick H. Baetjer, of Johns Hopkins Medical school, Dr. Christian Deetjen tomorrow is to give an arm to his devotion to the healing and revealing sciences of the roentgen, or X-ray. His left forearm will be amputated.

Already marked by a number of operations, one of which took a finger, Dr. Deetjen is one of a long line of martyrs who have undergone operation after operation as a result of dangerous exposure to the rays, and then have returned to their work with the courage of men who consider it more important than their own lives.

The "last of the old guard" has often been applied to Dr. Deetjen and Dr. Baetjer because so many of their predecessors among the early students of the comparatively new science have given their lives.

A dozen times Dr. Deetjen has been under the knife previously. He would have been even more seriously affected, according to Dr. Alexis McGinnis, who will perform the latest operation, had he failed to take preventive operations.

Dr. Baetjer, former president of the American Roentgen Ray Society, has undergone more than 75 operations. He has but one eye. Four fingers of his right hand are gone.

PEACE, QUIET REIGN
AFTER ALABAMA RIOTNegro Suspect and Confessed Slaying Transferred to Birmingham.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Order was restored in this hard-fought city tonight as two companies of Alabama National Guardsmen were demobilized and the two negroes they were called to active duty to protect were removed from the Madison county jail to Birmingham for safekeeping.

The negroes, C. E. Henderson and Rufus McCoy, were the object of a mob which gathered around the jail and was dispersed only after the guardsmen looted tear gas bombs and advanced on the milling crowd with fixed bayonets.

Henderson is held as a suspect in the slaying of H. E. Ross, prominent Huntsville businessman, Saturday night and McCoy is held for the slaying of J. C. Mathis, Phoenix, Ariz., traveling salesman. McCoy is said by police to have confessed to killing Mathis and throwing his body into the Tennessee river near here.

The negroes were carried to Birmingham after officers spirited them from the jail and announced that they were en route to the state penitentiary at Montgomery. It was understood they would be carried to Montgomery later this week.

The troops were called out at the direction of Governor Bibb Graves at Montgomery following a telephone conversation with Madison county authorities early Sunday. The two national guard companies, A and B, 127th engineers, were under command of Major Raymond Jones, who was placed in charge of the situation by the governor.

Indian Mound
Toads Believed
400 Years Old

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Three small toads, estimated by J. B. Thoburn, curator of the state historical society, to have been buried in an Indian mound for at least 300 to 400 years, have been excavated after near 400 years in northwestern Oklahoma.

Thoburn, making temporary excavations at the Indian mound, found the toads at depths varying from three to four feet.

"Each of these creatures was found in a dormant condition with eyes and lips sealed shut, in a small cavity in the mound of compact earth, with no means of ingress or egress until liberated by the tools of the excavators," he curator said.

"Within the brief space of a few moments, however, the eyes opened, but below the level of cultivation, was found the sunken firepit for a lodge of one of the plains Indian tribes, Comanche or Kiowa, who ceased to roam over this section more than half a century ago."

One of the best loved comedians of the American musical comedy stage, Leon Errol, will be featured at California Melodians at 10:30 tonight over WGST and the Columbia network.

Mr. Errol, an Australian by birth, came to the United States when he was in his teens and quickly won attention for his singing, dancing and pantomime on the vaudeville stage.

It was not, however, until Florence Ziegfeld picked him out and placed him in one of the early editions of the Midnight Frolic, that his success was assured. His big opportunity

SHERLOCK HOLMES—The Musgrave Ritual.

"Now, Watson," continued Holmes, "according to the directions in the Ritual, I took ten steps north with each foot, after consulting my pocket-compass. That led me parallel with the wall of the old house. Again I marked my spot with a peg."

"Then I carefully paced off five steps to the east, and two to the south. It brought me to the very threshold of the old door. Two steps to the west of that I saw that I was going down the stone-flagged passage inside the door, and this was the place indicated by the Ritual."

Holmes Baffled.

"Never have I felt such a cold chill of disappointment," Watson, for a moment it seemed to me that there must be some radical mistake in my calculations."

CATHOLICS HIT BACK
AT CANNON CHARGESBoston Leader Denies
Church as a Class Fights
Prohibition.

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—John C. L. Dowling, chairman of the Boston Association of Catholics favoring prohibition, today denied, as charged by Bishop James Canon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, that Catholics as a class are against prohibition.

The bishop yesterday, in New York, was quoted as saying "the Catholic element are largely responsible for the feeling against prohibition, the archbishops, cardinals and on up to the pope, are antagonistic to prohibition." Dowling termed the bishop's charges untrue.

Dowling said the pope had never taken a stand on prohibition and that statements by individual ecclesiastics could be only an expression of personal viewpoint.

"If it were not for the large Catholic element in such states as New Mexico, California, Arizona and others, in which there is a big Catholic population," he said, "the prohibition issue would never have been accepted."

"The Catholics of America view the statement of Bishop Canon as an intolerant insult both to their church and to themselves."

FRENCH SECURITY PLEA
EXPLAINED BY BRIAND

GENEVA, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Aristide Briand cast a glance toward Germany and Italy tonight and asked the League of Nations assembly to try to understand why France insists upon a greater degree of security before she can agree to a drastic reduction in armaments.

In carefully guarded language the veteran foreign minister of France called attention to the result of the German elections and to the armed conditions in other neighbor states, asking the leaders of some 50 countries if there were not good reason for France to be prudent.

M. Briand's address was interpreted as having immediate connection with the domestic situation arising out of the resurgence of nationalist spirit and Hitlerism in Germany. He reiterated the French formula of "arbitration, security—then disarmament," and declared that France since the World War has made large contributions to the cause of disarmament. Indeed, he continued, the French policy has been and continues to be fully consistent with Article VIII of the League of Nations covenant which stipulates that league members should enter into a general scheme for reduction and limitation of armaments.

Dr. Julius Curtius, of Germany, followed Briand and explained why his government favored the definite fixing of a general disarmament conference for 1931. He said his delegation would refuse to vote on any disarmament resolution which did not set a conference for next year.

Lord Cecil asserted for Great Britain that his country was eager to hasten disarmament work but reiterated his warning that a general conference must not be held until it can be sure of success.

The debate was upon the report of the disarmament committee, prepared by Jose Matos, of Guatemala. It invited the league preparatory disarmament commission to finish its work in November and authorized the council to convene a general conference "as soon as possible."

Before the thud of boot on pinstrip fill the air, the world's series, annual American baseball classic, must hold the boards so far as the sporting public is concerned—and that includes these days all the 50,000,000 radio listeners from Bangor, Maine, to Patagonia and other parts.

Atlanta will be well covered by radio this year as the cry "Play ball!" opens this afternoon the great battle of horsehide and home runs between the Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Cardinals in Shibe park in Philadelphia.

Starting at 1 o'clock this afternoon, the Columbia Broadcasting System will come over WGST, while the NBC will start an hour earlier, at 12 noon, over WSB. Both chains will continue the broadcast until 2:30 p. m. Graham McNamee, assisted by Ford Frick, will tell the story for NBC and Ted Husing will be the CBS announcer.

Walter (Fireball) Johnson, one of baseball's immortals, pitcher par excellence, manager of the Washington Senators, close contenders in the 1936 American league pennant race, and a outstanding example of managerial success in big league baseball, will be interviewed over WSB by Grantland Rice, noted sports writer and author, on the Coca-Cola program tonight the opening day of the world's series.

Walter Johnson will talk interestingly to the radio audience about the relative strength of the American and National league contenders for the world's championship in baseball, and about the probable outcome of the world's series. As a result of his years of experience as player and manager, and his intimate knowledge of baseball, he is peculiarly fitted to speak with conviction in picking a winner, and is expected that he will forecast the team he picks to win and why.

Certainly no man is better qualified to discuss the merits of the two contenders and their chances for winning or losing the annual baseball classic.

Coming at the close of the pennant races in the two big leagues and upon the opening day of the world's series, and at a time when interest in baseball is at fever heat, and the universal topic of conversation is baseball, and the burning question "who will win the world's series?" the words of Walter Johnson are of especial interest and significance to fans everywhere.

The Civitan Club radio program over WGST this evening from 8:30 to 8:45 o'clock will feature Lewis E. Gordon, of the W. R. C. Smith Publishing Company, speaking on "The Voice of the Boy," stressing the relationship between son and father, an important factor in the building of good citizenship, the primary objective of Civitan. The program is in charge of Julian V. Boehm.

"Pomp and Circumstance," by the English composer, Edward Elgar, will be played by the orchestra directed by Gustav Haenschen during the Palmolive Hour to be broadcast over WSB and an NBC network tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

Elgar wrote four marches under this title. No. 2 is to be played. The title is said to have been suggested by a phrase in Othello.

The Revellers open the program with "Who?" from "Sunny." Olive Palmer, soprano, and Paul Oliver, tenor, offer "Five and Rye" from the musical show "Dearest Enemy," as a duet.

One of the most important transportation industries, electric railways, will be discussed by the "Old Comedian" during the Halsey Stuart program which will be broadcast from WSB and the NBC Chicago studios at 8 o'clock tonight.

He will have some interesting comments to make on the early development of a system which now carries over 40,000,000 passengers daily, and he will also discuss the conditions of the industry at the present time.

Featured among the musical artists will be those presented by a symphony orchestra.

SISTO BANKING FIRM
SUSPENDED BY CHANGE

The first major brokerage house failure since the violent decline in stock prices last fall took place today.

The New York Stock Exchange and Philadelphia Stock Exchange suspended the banking and brokerage concern of J. A. Sisto and his associates on grounds of insolvency.

No explanation or statement or schedule of assets was available following the announcement. Partners of the concern included J. A. Sisto, Richard J. Sisto, William R. Deane, Charles J. Sisto, William R. Deane, J. A. Sisto, L. Haveron and Norris B. Henrington, firm member.

The announcement of the suspension of Sisto & Co. was reflected in violent price breaks in stocks on the stock exchanges in which Sisto has been or is now interested. Sisto Financial Corp., which is managed by Sisto & Co., dropped from $1 a share, compared with the recent offering price of $53 a share.

The Golden Oil Company, sponsored by the stock concern, was under pressure to pay dividends and share in the profits which Sisto was associated with. Sisto was associated with the company. New low levels were touched. The Chicago, Cab, Palmate Transportation Company, Inc., Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Hygrade Food Products Corporation and National Leather Machinery.

The Sisto failure is the seventh on the stock exchange since the beginning of 1925. The three which preceded it during the last 11 months were Manville, Brooks & Chafee, of Providence, R. I.; the American Investment Co. & Hall, of Cincinnati, on December 31, and Woody & Co., on June 29.

The New York state district attorney has begun an investigation into the affair, and is following a usual procedure with such insolvencies.

LOS ANGELES FIRM FAILS

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The brokerage firm, J. J. Loftus & Co., member of the California Stock Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade, filed suit against the exchange today. Simultaneously the California Stock Exchange announced the brokerage house had been suspended from membership. Company officials made no explanation.

Harold G. Ferguson, president of the California Exchange, said the firm was suspended because of its refusal to submit its books for examination by an exchange committee. John J. Loftus, president of the firm, and three other executives, also were suspended from membership.

The company specialized in grain trading.

Gotham Bank Boosts Reserve 20 Million

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(UN)—In view of present economic disturbances, the National City Bank of New York has transferred $20,000 from surplus to reserve for contingencies, Charles A. Mitchell, president of the bank today in making public the bank's condition statement as of September 24.

This is in line with the bank's action in the depression year of 1921, when additional reserves were created, Mitchell said, but added that the figure set aside now, as then, is far in excess of anything that could be required for any one year.

Mitchell described the action simply as "over reserving" the bank.

Bids Appear Before Close To Minimize Declines

Associated Press Financial Editor.
NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Curb market issues, in plunged precipitantly today, several issues breaking through the low levels established last November.

The decline reached a climax when failure of the investment house of J. A. Sisto & Co. was announced. For a time the market for several stocks of companies in which the Sisto firm was interested was completely demoralized, but bids began to appear before the close, and the market as a whole made moderate recovery from the day's lowest levels. The day's total sales aggregated 1,145,100 shares, the largest in more than three months.

Cuneo Press, of which Mr. Sisto is a director, sold at low as 14, cutting in half the previous final price. It later rallied to 23 1/4. Corden Oil, which sold early in the year at 14 1/2, was traded as low as 8. Sisto's final bid, which closed yesterday at 18 1/2, dropped to 10. For a time it was 2 1/2. Hygrade Food sold at 2 1/2 and closed 4 7/8, off 2 1/8.

Tilden Urges Removal of Politics From U.S.L.T.A. Administration

CALIBER OF PLAY SHOWS HEALTHY BASIC CONDITION

Government Should Be by Men Who Have Been Players.

By William T. Tilden, 2d.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(NANA) The tennis season is over but much remains to be done before next year if our jubilee year is to be the great success we hope it to be.

The year 1930 has been ripe with the promise of coming greatness through the rise of John Doe, Sidney Wood, Clifford Sutter, Ellsworth Vines, Frank Shields; the brilliance of Wilmer Allison; the excellence of John Van Ryn and Gregory Mangin.

True, there have been disappointments in the showing of Frank Hunter, Junior Conn, George Lott and Fritz Mercer. However, from a playing standpoint, tennis is in a healthy and flourishing condition.

NOT FAIR.

Politically, and unfortunately our tennis is largely governed by politics, all is not so fair. Never has the game been so dominated by politics, governed and organized by men, many of whom are not and never have been players. One cannot blame, one can rather understand, if not excuse, blunders by men who have never played the game since they have had no experience in meeting the situations that arise in international tennis.

We have been indeed fortunate during this era of executive lack of playing knowledge to have had at the head of our Davis cup organization two men like Joseph W. Wear and F. E. Dixon, who are both experienced in international sport and strong in executive ability. They made up to some extent what our country lost.

However, another year is at hand, a most important one to the U. S. L. T. A. I am not questioning the sincerity of the present administration, nor its fairness, nor its earnest desire to do all in its power to aid the game of tennis. I only question its judgment and its methods.

LEADER NEEDED.

I feel very strongly the time has come when the United States Lawn Tennis Association needs a leader who has a background that includes not only long business training but also that of a player, an international sportsman and one versed in the niceties of diplomatic correspondence.

Weighty problems face our next president. Today many of the foreign nations consider the U. S. L. T. A. almost ridiculous in its handling of the amateur problem. They wonder why we do not follow the generally accepted standards of the international federation, without adding a lot of hair-splitting rules that only handicap ourselves. They are not pleased at our arrogance toward aiding their teams to play in the United States. They feel we lack a spirit of reciprocity in our policy of international play, and they are right.

What is needed in American tennis today is a man of assured social and financial position, who is not affiliated with any of the present existing political factions in the association, yet one who is acceptable to all of them. Such a figure would require much searching to find and once found might refuse the job but if he would give to the U. S. L. T. A. And what a benefit he would be to the game of amateur tennis.

This much is certain. The present handling of teams, the present attitude of international reciprocity, is too wrapped up with political ambition to give the desired results. I consider the Wightman Cup was lost when Miss Harper, our leading doubles player, was left off the team so as to include a player from the Missouri Valley Association and hold its votes to the present administration. A team's personnel must be divorced from political aspiration or personal likes and dislikes if success is to meet American teams in future years.

The time is ripe now for every district and sectional association to consider seriously if they desire any changes in the administration next year and if so they should express themselves to the nominating committee at once.

Phil Lifts Faces Now

Phil Scott, the British heavyweight champion whom W. L. Stribling knocked out, is now running a beauty parlor in London and has six assistants to help, so good is business. In the ring he couldn't lift a face. Now he can.

Happy Phil Lifts Faces Without Fear of Resin

No Jabs Worry Scott Now as He Blacks Eyes in Beauty Shop.

By Ralph McGill.

Mr. Phillip Suffling, called Phil Scott, is going about his daily beauty shop chores now in happy mood, according to reports from his beauty salon in London.

Mr. Suffling retired from the prize ring after his fight with W. L. Stribling, the Georgia boy, who is the leading heavyweight in America. Mr. Suffling was counted out while he sat on his haunches, they having been made temporarily impotent to lift him up.

There were some coarse comments made when the British champion retired to his beauty salon and began to study coiffures instead of cuffs. The boys who chronicle happenings of the ring waxed facetious at the expense of the new business which the one-time fighter had entered.

All of this rude comment was very unjust indeed. Mr. Suffling was but following out the primal urgings of his being which called for fierce action in the ring. Mr. Suffling longed to lift whole faces with one blow. He yearned to remove a chin with one sharp upcut. He ached to black eyes, distort noses and create havoc with the mouth and ears of his opponent.

After years of effort in the ring, marked by a singular lack of success, the man chose to give it up and achieve his life's ambition by other means.

The boys really owe Mr. Suffling an apology. He has circumvented fate, beaten what appeared to be an unfortunate kismet and is on the highway to happiness.

STROVE IN VAIN.

There is no telling how many faces Mr. Suffling lifts nowadays. Four years he strove to lift one in the ring and succeeded only in being knocked violently on his back or in being fouled out.

For years the Londoner sought to hammer noses out of shape, to land with his left and his right on the beaks of his opponents.

And now look. The man can remake noses. He can take a nose and make a new one of it where in the past the noses were always bobbing out of his way. In his beauty salon he can remake noses to his heart's content. The pay, while not as large, is steady and there is no need to always be brushing resin off one's back.

JUST A BREEZE!

And black eyes! Mr. Suffling needs but to take the pot of masecara, a small brush and an eyebrow pencil and there you are. Scads of black eyes. And of any shade. In the ring he was not artist enough to black an eye. Now Mr. Suffling can have an eye lightly blacked or he can make it heavily smudged with masecara and pencil until it is very black indeed.

And while he never had any of the boys in the ring going about having their lips sewed up he can now take a lipstick and remake the shape of any mouth.

which may come to him for treatment.

Six assistants aid Mr. Suffling in his new chores. One can get a sort of thrill out of imagining Mr. Suffling saying to his assistants, "Send the tough jobs to me."

THESE TOUGH ONES.

In the ring Mr. Suffling had a few of the tough ones sent to him and they treated him very badly indeed. Often was he forced to get on his bike and get away from some of the tough ones.

But not now. "Send them to me," Mr. Suffling can say with confidence, knowing that no matter how terrible a pan may look he can lift it; no matter how awful a beak may be shaped he can remake it.

The boys have done Mr. Scott a very great wrong in taking his work lightly and deriding it with coarse humor.

The man has realized his ambition. Quick, Watson, the lipstick.

JAYCEE GOLF PLAY ENTERS SEMI-FINALS

Fowler, Bridges, Winchell and Barnes Advance in Tourney.

By Roy White.

Forest Fowler, the medalist; Russell Bridges, Dick Winchell, defending champion, and Pete Barnes, spring champion, entered the semi-final round of the annual fall Junior Chamber of Commerce golf tournament with victories Tuesday on the West End course. Fowler defeated Mike Menton, 5-3; Bridges eliminated Charles Andrews, 1 up; Winchell beat Larry Caudill, 4-2, and Barnes forced E. S. Hartman into the consolation flight with a 4-3 victory.

Bridges rally on the back nine decided the match. Dick Winchell, the present champion, played a spectacular game to beat Larry Caudill. Winchell shot a brilliant 73 for the round.

In the semi-final matches today Winchell plays Barnes in the lower bracket and Bridges meets Fowler in the upper bracket.

M. M. Anderson and Robert Edmond, in the first flight, played the longest match of the day. Anderson won out on the 21st green. Jesse Webb defeated H. F. McDonald, 1 up, on the 10th green in another close match.

Final matches in every flight will be played Thursday, with the championship match slated to go 36 holes. The others will be only 18 holes.

Bridges Scores Ace At Druid Hills.

Russell Bridges, Sr., extended his membership in Atlanta's "Hole-in-One" Club Tuesday, and at the same time averted defeat in the first flight finals of the Druid Hills Club championship. Bridges ended all square with B. E. Shields, and they will play again later in the week for the title. The dodo was scored on the par three 170-yard fourth hole, and marked the second ace Bridges has scored at Druid Hills in his golfing career. The other was two years ago on the old 17th hole.

any time this season, and with the line jamming up any attack offered by scrub or second team, the Jacket prospects appear in a more favorable light.

Coach Alexander announced that he would take little chance with Maree in the game Saturday. The Jackets have Carnegie Tech one week hence and some thought is being given to that game.

Mike Chambers, whose efficient work has got the injured and sick men back in the game, said Tuesday that Vance Maree would be quite ready Saturday. "The infection is almost entirely healed," he said. "The others, with the exception of Williams, are ready now."

Service Heads Give Legion Golf Prizes

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The donation by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley of a $500 silver trophy to the American Legion interdepartment golf tournament was announced today by the Legion convention's sport committee.

This cup, which will serve as a perpetual trophy, will be awarded to the ex-army golfer making the best score in the 36-hole interdepartment play that will be staged at the Wollaston Country Club, Quincy, on October 5. A similar prize, presented by Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams, will be given to the lowest scoring Legionnaire who served in the navy or marine corps.

The field in the interdepartment play will be limited to two golfers from each of the American Legion departments. It is likely that Francis Ousmel, former national open and amateur champion, and Fred J. Wright, Jr., present Massachusetts amateur titleholder, will be named as the Massachusetts department's pair.

PETREL VARSITY DRILLS LIGHTLY, 'SECONDS' WORK

Robertson Scrimmages Reserve Eleven for LaGrange High Game.

By Jack Troy.

The Oglethorpe varsity was dismissed after a comparatively light workout Tuesday afternoon, while Coach Robertson whipped into shape a second team to send into action against LaGrange High school Friday afternoon at LaGrange.

A pair of new faces appeared in the varsity lineup in signal drill, Ray Walker and Sam Baker running in the positions ordinarily occupied by Frank Anderson, Jr., and Dapper Meyers. Walker scored the Petrels' only touchdown against Georgia and likely will be used frequently during the season. He is one of the most consistent punters the squad affords and also is an accurate forward passer. Baker is a fast halfback and a capable pass receiver.

In reviewing the play of the Petrels against Georgia in a short talk to the squad, Coach Robertson lauded the play of Al Church, veteran tackle. He was also high in his praise of Andy Morrow, sophomore center. He wound up by saying that the Georgia game is a thing of the past and as such is forgotten. "We're going to work for Manhattan and the other tough games on the schedule, and there will be nothing but football talked out here for the balance of the season," Robby said.

Dapper Meyers, who played a good game against the Bulldogs, ran signals with the varsity during the session but Anderson was content to watch the drill, his wrenched knee giving him trouble.

The varsity was released and Coach Robertson called for the freshmen to scrimmage against the Petrels reserves.

Billy James and Dave Therrell tore through and around their freshmen adversaries and a potent pass combination, James to Hains, was uncovered.

The varsity boys will buckle down to intensive work today in preparation for the Manhattan game in New York city, October 11. A long scrimmage is on tap.

Brown Wins Atlanta Architect Tourney.

A. Ten Eyck Brown, J. W. Cooper and M. C. Kollock were winners in the recent eighth annual architects' golf tournament which was played over the Capital City Country Club course. Brown won the championship for Atlanta architects with a medal score of 74. Cooper won the southeastern architects' trophy with a card of 73, and Kollock was medalist with a gross of 78.

In a driving contest, Flippen D. Burge won the trophy with the longest drive of the day. A. N. Dryden, of Kingsport, Tenn., won a prize for the best putter of the tournament, and M. C. Kollock won a trophy for the best draftsman in the tournament.

Following the one-day medal affair, which was a feature of the annual meeting of the Georgia Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, a dinner was served at the country club. Samuel Iman Cooper presented the cups and prizes at the dinner.

GOOD DEFENSE BEST ATTACK OF ATHLETICS

Cardinals Hold 20-Point Bat Edge But Pitchers Failed.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—(U.N.)—Comparison of the final averages of the final world series players reveals that the Philadelphia Athletics were superior to the St. Louis Cardinals through the regular season in pitching and fielding but were inferior in batting.

The Cardinals, as a team, batted 20 points higher than the Athletics, 314 in comparison to 294. In club fielding the Athletics led with an average of .975 to .970. In pitching the Athletics had five pitchers—Grove, Shores, Rommel, Mahaffey and Earnshaw—who compiled better records than any member of the St. Louis pitching corps.

Grove alone won only three less victories than the two leading winners of the Cardinals, having 23 triumphs against 16 for Grimes and 15 for Halahan.

In batting, the Cardinals topped the Athletics in six of the eight positions outside the pitching box. Simmons with .381, outfielder Hafey with .335 and Fox with .325, outfielder Bottomley with .303. Every other St. Louis player had a margin over his Philadelphia rival.

Defensively, the Athletics outclassed the Cardinals at every position, each Philadelphia player having a better fielding average than his St. Louis rival.

Southern Methodist Has Drastic Passing Attack. Vandy Plays Gophers.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—(U.N.)—Midwestern football will give the world series competition in a big way this week, with four first-rate attractions on its schedule.

At the top of an extraordinarily hot early season card will be Notre Dame's 1930 premier in which Knute Rockne will send his men of all nations against the aerial circus from Southern Methodist University. If the Southerners bring as powerful an attack as they have juggled around the country during the past two seasons, there will be no such thing as a warm-up game on the Irish schedule.

Doeg Goes to Work As Wedding Nears

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 30.—(U.N.)—John Hope Doeg, the star young Californian who won the national tennis singles championship at Forest Hills on September 12, entered upon a business career today.

Doeg went to work in the office of the Newark Evening News, preparing himself for a place in the employ of O'Mara and Ormsbee, advertising agents, in New York. Doeg's fiancée, Miss Dorothy Scudder, of Newark, is the daughter of the publisher of the Evening News.

As for tennis, Doeg says he plans to defend his national singles and doubles titles next year, but expects in general to confine his playing to tournaments around New York.

AUBURN PREPS FOR SPRING HILL

Supporters Cheered by Improved Showing of Tigers Saturday.

AUBURN, Ala., Sept. 30.—(U.N.)—Emerging from their opening game with Birmingham Southern without any major injuries, the Auburn Tigers have got down to serious work on Drake field for their hard game this week-end with Spring Hill. The Tigers and Plainsmen will face each other here in Auburn's first home contest Saturday at 3 o'clock.

Unless injuries occur this week, Auburn will be able to start their full strength against the team coached by Bill Daly and Mike Donahue. Trainer Wilbur Hunsell had the team in almost perfect condition for their initial battle, as shown by the fact that they called for rest only once and had no substitutions made on account of injuries.

WORLD SERIES STARTS TODAY

both the opening game and the series, the odds in each case being 10 to 1. These odds are based upon an appreciation of American league supremacy, on the pitching power of Grove and the other Philadelphia hurlers, on the batting punch of the Big Three, Cochrane, Simmons and Fox, and on managerial strategy, in which Connie Mack is conceded the palm over Gabby Street, who is in his first year as a big league pilot.

FIGHTING CARDS.

On the other hand, the fighting spirit of the Cardinals, the momentum attained through the closing days of September, their all-around hitting strength and well balanced infield—if Frisch is at his best—these factors have caused many to back the National league champions. There is quite a bit of betting, more, certainly than last year, and commissioners estimate that approximately $1,000,000 will change hands here and in St. Louis on the outcome of the series, with no consideration of wagers made in other parts of the country.

Aside from the debate upon the chances of the contenders, the one big question in Philadelphia today was: "How can I get a ticket?"

The 30,000 reserved seats in Shibe park were all contracted for long ago, and now are changing hands—sometimes surreptitiously, despite the watchful eyes of detectives and federal agents. When the bleacher gates are opened tomorrow morning, 3,000 more fans can get in. Then it will be a case of back to the radio, for this Philadelphia ball park can hold no more.

Allowing for Frisch being able to play, the teams will line up at 1:30 tomorrow as follows:

Dykes3B.	Adams3B.

George Moriarity, former manager of the Detroit Tigers and before and since a famous major league umpire, will be in charge of the game behind the plate, with Rigger at first, Geisel at second and Reardon at third.

Baseball headquarters in the Bellevue Stratford hotel took on a real old-fashioned world series air today, with Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis presiding, and old-timers of the national pastime on hand from every part of the country. They came drifting in today to slap each other on the back and renew friendly discussions which are continued on from year to year. They came from Canada, with bulging hips, from California and Kokomo and Charlottesville, big leaguers and little leaguers, men who played the game wearing side-whiskers back in the gay nineties.

President Heydler, of the National league, and President Barnard, of the American, were besieged in their respective headquarters by friends and acquaintances and just plain pests, all seeking tickets for the opening game.

"The judge" and the major league

SHOWING BETTER.

Since the showing made by Auburn in her curtain-raiser was bright from several angles, it is the opinion of the prognosticators here that she looked better in defeat last Friday night than she looked in victory in 1929.

It was the best showing made by the Orange and Blue wingmen in several years. The tackling was hard and fair, the punting was the best shown by an Auburn team since 1923; and last, but not least, the performance put on by Captain Harkins was one of the finest that he has staged since donning the Auburn moleskins four years ago.

It took the University of Georgia three years to master the famous and intricate Notre Dame system, so why shouldn't Auburn alumni and followers be optimistic over the Tigers' chances of playing creditable football this season after being barely tossed out by a more experienced eleven in their first battle under Coach Chet Wynne?

EIGHT SOPHOMORES.

Auburn started inexperienced players and also placed a team on the field that was inexperienced in training. Eight sophomores started for Auburn against Southern, and they had been drilled in the Notre Dame system a little over four weeks. The result makes every faithful Auburn follower believe that Chet Wynne will be the man of the hour at the Cornerstone if given the proper support and time. This has been proved before at other schools.

The sophomores, who looked like veterans at times in their varsity debut, were Sam Mason and Porter Grant; ends, Herbert Miller, tackle, Tom Brown, fullback, and Jimmie Hitchcock, halfback. Ike Parker ran the team as well as could be expected, but committed several costly mistakes which he will be able to remedy with added seasoning. He is a brainy field general.

MCKEE INELIGIBLE.

Louis McKee, varsity end last season, is having trouble with the faculty which will make him ineligible until October 18. He has a chance to get off probation when he takes an examination at that time. He was not being used as first-string end this year, but was counted on heavily as a leading reserve.

Cochran Roger J. Kiley, who scouted Spring Hill in their impressive 71 to 0 victory last Saturday, brought back words of praise concerning Auburn's opponent Saturday. They also have a team composed largely of veterans which will make the going tough for the Bengals. It is expected to be another close battle with one or two touchdowns separating the winner from the loser.

presidents and practically everyone concerned predicted a good series, a far better one than those of the immediate past.

Since the Cardinals of 1926 won the world's championship, National league representatives have won but one game in three successive series. The Pirates of 1927 and the Cards of 1928 were whitewashed by the New York Yankees while last year the Chicago Cubs garnered only a single game from the present world's champions.

This forthcoming series may prove another one of those things. But until it does, everyone here is hoping for the best.

their favor. They point out that Earnshaw has not gone so well in his appearances in the closing weeks of the season. They do not fear any of the other Mack twirlers, but so far as that goes the Cubs did not fear Howard Egan last year until he had fanned 13 of them in the opening game.

"If the Cardinals play against the A's the way they did against Brooklyn in the series that sped them to the top, I will be satisfied," remarked John Arnold Heydler, president of the National league and leader of the forces hopeful that the three-year winning streak of the American league will be brought to an abrupt finish. Heydler feels that the greatest of the St. Louis club has been tested and not found wanting.

The Cards not only have manifested their fighting spirit under heavy fire this year, acquiring a momentum that may be hard to check, but they have readily apparent assets in the quantity as well as quality of their pitching staff, the sustained power of their batting attack right down the line and the excellence of their infield defense, assuming Frisch can hold up a brisk batting and fielding drill after the Athletics had engaged in a two-hour drill in some secrecy.

CARDS PEPPY.

There was plenty of snap and spirit in the workout of the Cardinals this afternoon at Shibe park, where they put on a brisk batting and fielding drill after the Athletics had engaged in a two-hour drill in some secrecy.

Al Simmons, big gun of the A's, remained to do a little joshing with such rivals as Grimes and Bottomley. Al was solicitous, too, about the condition of Jimmy Wilson, Cardinal backstop, who injured an ankle several weeks ago and is not expected to play in the series, unless something happens to the heavy-hitting Gus Mancuso.

The first Cardinal on the field was Taylor Douthett, fleet fielder, and his initial act was to inspect the fly-catching conditions under the sun that proved so blinding a year ago to Hack Wilson of the Cubs.

STREET CHEERFUL.

"Douthett has played worse sunfields than this and he will have no trouble," remarked Street as his center fielder galloped around high-hit balls.

So far the debate over rival chances has been much more brisk than the rush for tickets. Speculators did little or no business today, with the supply of pastels apparently well in excess of the demand.

Unless there is a belated attack on the turnstiles tomorrow, Shibe park may not be filled to its increased capacity of 35,000. Three thousand bleacher seats, selling at $1 each, go on sale tomorrow morning.

On top of the houses facing the park on 20th street temporary bleachers have again been erected to accommodate several thousand spectators, but this enterprise was not very profitable a year ago.

Legion Champions Are Honor Guests.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 30.—(U.N.)—Fourteen Baltimore youngsters, world baseball champions in their own right, will watch the world series from boxes in Philadelphia and St. Louis and will be the honor guests of the series management.

The 14 are members of the team sponsored by the Baltimore and Ohio post of the American Legion, which won the national junior championship in Memphis.

THE SPORTLIGHT By Frankfort Rice

THE LASTING QUALITY.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 30.—Then pen may be mightier than the sword. But there is still less doubt that the brain has more endurance than any brawn, provided there was a brain to start with.

Of the ball players who fought out the Giant-Athletic world series of 1905, 25 years ago, there are none left in action. Most of them faded out of the spotlight years ago.

But the brain of Connie Mack is keener today than it was in 1905. Harry Davis, Socks Seybold, Ossie Schreck, Chief Bender, Eddie Plank, Lave Cross, Topsy Hartzel, Danny Murphy, Monte Cross, all forgotten or merely memories of what used to be. But the brain of Connie Mack directs another world series 25 years later and it is one of the main barricades in the Cardinals' path.

Legs, arms and eyes only last so long when it comes to facing competition. The head and what is in the head are something else again. Connie Mack could direct a world series 10 years from now when the members of his present squad are also forgotten—most of them at least. He looks to be in better health now than he was a year ago—or two years ago. He has found a team that could win—and that could repeat. And the real champion must repeat to prove his place.

Whether or not Connie repeats with another world series champion will not be definitely known until a few days have passed. But he will turn in his share of the job, knowing just a little more about it than he knew in 1905 when he was only 43. At 43 the ball player's work is over. At 43 Connie Mack was looking to even greater triumphs 25 years ahead. Which is at least one reason why brain is much more important than brawn—why mind has it over muscle.

CHECKING BACK.

CONNIE MACK was winning pennants before Bobby Jones was born—before Ty Cobb ever played a professional game—before Jack Dempsey ever put on a glove—before Babe Ruth could hit a ball out of the infield—before Tilden ever flicked a tennis racket.

And in all that time not a breath of trickery, scandal, unfairness or any sort of charge against him. He has proved again the rare value of complete integrity of sportsmanship, whether the game be professional or amateur.

He has shown that even in sport—where they always talk in terms of youth—a man can be a dominating figure around the age of 70. His contribution to the good of baseball has been more than anyone can measure in terms of batting eyes or pitching arms.

OLD MAN GRIMES.

BURLEIGH GRIMES shut out Cleveland in a world series ten years ago and he was no rookie then. It will be interesting to see what the last of the spiballers, on his way to 38, will do in this series.

Before it is over he may be the most annoying songster of the Cardinal flock.

At his best he will be hard to handle on the field, so far as hostile bats are concerned. But one at 37 or 38 is never quite sure how the game will go for a certain day—how the reflexes and the mental and physical coordination will blend.

Grimes still has the heart and the head—and a pretty good arm. If he can get that most missile flopping and dipping he is something for anybody to beat—if not in the opener, then later on.

THE FORDHAM FLASH.

FRANK FRISCH has been a star in every series he has tackled. The old Fordham Flash, not so old at that, is one of those competitors who never really gets keyed up until a big show comes along. He won't loaf through a season, but it is only on rare occasion he hits his fastest speed.

In a world series he is usually all over the lot, one of the brightest of the brilliants, giving everything he has.

Frisch is still fast and dangerous. He and Jim Bottomley will be two that Mackmen pitchers will have to treat with much thought.

DR. STREET.

GABBY STREET was always a smart catcher and Gabby must have shown his share of directing ability in driving a ball club to 41 victories out of its last 47 starts. He is a wise old-timer who knows his trade.

Injuries threw his club out of the race earlier in the season but he led them back into the hunt 10 1-2 games back of first place, which shows that Gabby isn't easily discouraged.

The same goes for his club. You don't fluke or flash your way into 41 out of 47 starts down the stretch.

It might be interesting to note that two of the best hitters in the American league figure George Earnshaw the best pitching possibility in baseball—provided he works a trifle more on his control. By which they mean he has more raw stuff packed in his right elbow, shoulder and wrist, but here and there it needs a little more refining or taming down.

Brilliant Runs Saturday Recalled Mack Brown. Old Miss Is Next.

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Sept. 30.—(Special.)—Alabama has "get-away man."

He is John Henry Suther, who arrived with the flash long expected of him Saturday afternoon in Denny stadium. Suther's 96-yard touchdown on the kick-off and 56-yard dash around end stand out as the most encouraging features to date in respect to the University of Alabama varsity, which beat Howard 43 to 0.

Suther did things Saturday that no Alabama halfback has done since the departure of Johnny Mack Brown. True, several years ago Davis Brasfield showed some of those antelope characteristics but one season and the stub of another made the sum total of his efforts for Alabama.

AVERAGED 24 1-4 YARDS.

In the game but 10 minutes, Suther gained 97 yards from scrimmage on four plays, then returned the kick-off 96 yards.

However, all the Alabama backs showed good gaining averages since the weakened Howard line. Two Crimson teams besieged the visitors, and met a stubborn defense that frequently held the second team near the goal line.

The 33-yard drop kick of Hugh Barr Miller is another distinctly favorable sign for Alabama. Miller kicked a beautiful goal, standing on Howard's 43-yard line. The goal posts are 10 yards behind the goal line and were 53 yards away when Miller kicked. The midday back surprised everyone with his feat, and gave Alabama promise of threat which she has not carried since Big Ben Compton kicked field goals from placement in 1923 and 1924.

OLE MISS BETTER.

Coach Wade and his assistants expect more of a test from Mississippi this week. In fact, the Ole Miss crew now starting its first season under "Chuck" Smalling, is reported to be even better than that of 1928. It is remembered that in 1929, Ole Miss almost upset Tennessee in Knoxville. Points after touchdowns won for the Vols.

The Tide weathered its first clash with no serious injuries. Sharpe, Sanford and two or three others were slightly hurt, but none are out for the season. With eight conference games in a row, Alabama can be assured of at least starting the campaign with a full squad.

The Crimson line did its usual stuff Saturday and the backfield appeared better than last year. But there were no passes completed out of eight tried. Alabama has not found her Gillis to take a place beside Suther.

Rochester Beats Louisville, 8 to 6

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 30.—(U.N.)—Rochester made it four to two in the little world series, winning today's game, 8 to 6, from the Louisville, American Association champions.

JEBY WINS DECISION.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(U.N.)—Ben Jeby, New York middleweight, easily outpointed Babe McGorgary, of Oklahoma, in a six-round bout at the Broadway arena tonight. Jeby weighed 160; McGorgary 167 1-2.

TARZAN AND THE LOST EMPIRE No. 69

Every eye turned in the direction of the balcony, Tarzan leaped from the balcony to one of the pillars that supported the roof and slid quickly to the floor, while behind him came six hairy apes. A dozen windows flashed from scarabaeas as the golden ape, screaming with terror. "The guard! The guard!" he cried weakly.

A noble with bare head leaped in front of Tarzan and his friends. He was a man of noble bearing, with a long, straight nose, and a pair of eyes that were as blue as the sky. He was dressed in a simple, white tunic, and he had a sword at his side. He was the noble who had been the first to see Tarzan, and he was the one who had been the first to tell him of the existence of the lost empire. He was the noble who had been the first to see Tarzan, and he was the one who had been the first to tell him of the existence of the lost empire.

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Fastus, screaming, turned and fled in terror, and Tarzan leaped to the side. The suddenness and strangeness of the attack had paralyzed the soldiers and there was none to help the Emperor, who, jabbering with fear, scuttled from his seat to hide behind the throne.

The body was recovered from the river Tuesday night and was taken to Macon, where it was held at the Ocmulgee river Tuesday night.

Mr. Rodgers formerly was widely known in Atlanta, where he was the representative of a Macon snuff company. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rodgers of this city, and married the former Miss Lottie Mae Hammond. Besides his parents and widow, two children survive, a son, Roy, Jr., and a daughter, Virginia. The tragedy occurred while Mr. Rodgers, who was accompanied by a friend, was hunting ducks in the marshes of the Ocmulgee near Macon. Several birds had flown up and Mr. Rodgers rose hastily to get a shot at them when he fell from the boat and sank before his companion could rescue him.

Austrian Cabinet Includes Fascists

VIENNA, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Fascism's astonishing political successes in Germany this month were reflected tonight in the announcement of Austria's new cabinet, which included two fascist ministers and is dependent for stability upon fascist support in the next general election.

The new government was formed by Dr. Karl Vaugoin, vice chancellor of the resigned Schoner cabinet. The cabinet was said to have been approved by President Wilhelm Miklas. Semi-official announcements stated that parliament would be dissolved tomorrow.

Dr. W. A. Lambeth, former pastor of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist church of Washington, D. C., and one of the outstanding ministers in Southern Methodism, has been assigned to the North Georgia conference and will be in charge of the conference at the Mount Vernon church, according to an announcement Tuesday.

The assignment of Dr. Lambeth followed the assignment of Dr. W. A. Shelton, of Emory University, to the pastorate of the Washington church, which Dr. Lambeth had filled for seven years. Dr. Shelton already was in Washington preparatory to taking over his duties as pastor of the Mount Vernon church.

Helen To Leave Rumania Soon To Stay Forever

VIENNA, Sept. 30.—(AP)—A Rumanian politician visiting Vienna today said that Queen Helen, of Rumania, after many years and great sorrow, had decided to leave Rumania forever and to hand over entirely to King Carol their little son Michael, formerly the boy king.

In the queen's immediate entourage it is believed she will soon go to London and there to a permanent residence near other members of the former Greek royal family.

Her reconciliation with King Carol now seemed to be beyond all hope. The politician said King Carol, before deciding to postpone his coronation this fall, had told Premier Maniu that he was willing to be crowned with Queen Helen on the understanding that her status as his divorced wife remain unchanged.

This proposal was resolutely opposed by the premier, King Carol was visibly exasperated at the thought he must forego an early coronation. He believed that this formality would greatly impress his subjects and strengthen his position politically.

Recently, however, the king remarked in the presence of many persons that he had decided to accept the proposal. He would be to leave Rumania of her own accord.

New Orleans Begins Probe of Tax Frauds

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Holding that the taxpayers involved in a reputed $150,000 back-tax fraud were guilty of a crime, a group of former city hall employees alleged to have manipulated the scheme, District Attorney Eugene Stanley today placed the case before the Orleans parish grand jury.

Sixty-two persons called as witnesses in the untold secrecy in order to shield their names from the public were summoned to appear today before the special grand jury session.

At the district attorney's office it was said that no charges would be preferred against the taxpayers unless an attempt was made to shield those responsible for the plan to defraud.

Four former employees have been charged in the scheme reported by city auditors to extend back over three years. The district attorney declared that false receipts were issued, bills were taken from the treasurer's office and false entries made while the money was pocketed.

Knights of Columbus Meet in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Ten state deputies of the Knights of Columbus attending a regional meeting here today, heard Supreme Knight Martin J. Canine of Grand Rapids, Mich., discuss a program to alleviate unemployment and provide relief for drought sufferers.

Arduously said that a survey of the situation had just been completed by his organization in Arkansas, Kentucky and Oklahoma, and revealed many acute cases in those states. He explained that the national order had already appropriated $25,000 to aid in the relief work in the area.

Attending the meeting were William J. McGinley, supreme secretary, New York City; Supreme Directors Francis J. Henzel, North Carolina, and William J. Henzel, New Orleans, and the following state deputies: Hugh Meehan, Alabama; Thomas M. Callahan, Louisiana; Walter R. Webb, Arkansas; John Massey, Florida; Nicholas T. Stafford, Georgia; C. B. Beane, Mississippi; William P. Sullivan, Oklahoma; Edward D. Buckley, South Carolina; E. J. Walker, Tennessee, and John I. Driscoll, Texas.

Orleans Grand Jury Hears Graft Case

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30.—(AP)—In special session today the Orleans parish grand jury heard evidence from many of 62 witnesses summoned to testify on the $150,000 back tax fraud in which scores of taxpayers are alleged to have fallen for a penalty-doling scheme as favors for petty politicians.

The taxpayers involved were held liable as parties to the scheme by District Attorney Eugene Stanley unless they came forward under oath and made a clean breast of it and told all they knew of the "racket."

Mr. Stanley said that the grand jury was called to weigh the evidence against four men, formerly employed at city hall, charged with issuing bogus receipts and to determine whether others were directly connected with the deals.

The district attorney warned that charges would be placed against any taxpayer testifying who withheld any evidence in his possession or attempted to shield those responsible for the scheme.

The city auditors said that their investigations to date have revealed 62 verified instances of trading in the back taxes.

Dr. McCain Explains Need of Remaining $300,000 for College

The campaign of completion to raise the remaining $300,000 of the $1,500,000 Greater Agnes Scott College fund was formally launched at a luncheon attended by college officials, faculty members, campaign leaders and 450 students in the college gymnasium Tuesday afternoon.

Dr. R. McCain, president of Agnes Scott, outlined the plan and purpose of the campaign and expressed confidence that the college would "Follow Through," which is the motto adopted for the movement.

"We had an institution known far and wide for its scholarship, and ranked as one of the first nine colleges for women in the United States, but we were dressed so shabbily that we were almost ashamed to have visitors. But today, our new administration building, has helped us materially. We need a chapel, a music and arts building, an auditorium and a dormitory and dining hall to provide more modern living quarters."

George Winslow, general committee chairman, paid a tribute to Dr. McCain for the character of leadership that he has advanced Agnes Scott so rapidly.

J. K. Orr, chairman of the board of trustees, spoke on the record and the future of the college. He predicted the success of the campaign of completion.

Miss Sarah Townsend, of Anderson, S. C., president of the class of 1930, was toastmistress. Miss Mildred McCall, of Yazoo City, Miss., a senior, was cheer leader. Miss Rae Brown, of Atlanta, of the senior class, was the toastmistress.
